THE UNKNOWN BLONDE

BY LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

(All Rights Reserved).

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Who killed TRACY KING, orchestra leader found dead in his apartment? DAVID BANNISTER, author, former newspaper reporter, undertakes to find out. Police are searching for an "unknown blonde" who visited King shortly before his death. Bannister has seen this girl, but she has disappeared since.

HERMAN BOURLACI, who wrote King a threatening letter, is in jail. He declares his innocence. Bannister works on the case with J. RANDOLPH GAINES, star reporter of the Post in the dead man's apartment. Bannister picks up an old-fashioned wedding picture which he keeps.

AL DRUGAN, friend of King's, says the orchestra leader had been having trouble with JOE PARROTT, his former vaudeville partner, and accuses Parrott of the murder. GAINES and BANNISTER go to see wealthy DENISE LANG, King's fiancée. PARKER COLEMAN, an old friend, also calls. Denise's father enters the room, sees the newspaper man and demands angrily, "What is the meaning of this?"

CHAPTER XVI

"The girl was on her feet instantly. 'Father, please—' she began.

He did not seem to hear her. Arthur Lang was a man of medium height, slightly built, but anger seemed to make him formidable. He took a few steps forward, then stopped.

"This is an outrage!" he exclaimed dramatically. "Newspaper men—that's what you are! Don't try to tell me you're not—I heard enough to know. Sneaking in where you're not wanted, it's an outrage. I told you this morning not to come around my house. I told you to stay away from here!"

"But, Mr. Lang—"

There was no use trying to stem the torrent. Bannister saw that as soon as he had spoken.

The older man's voice rose in volume. "I won't have you here!" he stormed, his face flushing crimson. "Don't you understand that? A man has a right to some privacy in his own home! You can print what you want in your filthy sheets; you can peep through the keyholes of other men's homes, but I'll have the law on you, damn you, if you don't get out of here!"

Bannister interrupted again. Already he was on his feet. "Come on, GAINES," he said levelly. "I take it we're being invited to move elsewhere. Sorry, Miss Lang!"

Over his shoulder he caught a glimpse of the girl's white face. Was there mute appeal in that swift glance—something the girl wanted to tell him? Bannister thought so. Perhaps it was nothing more than an apology for her father's behaviour. Whatever it was, there was only a fraction of a second before Bannister had turned away. A moment later he and GAINES were in the hall. The maid supplied their hats and the two men stepped outside. GAINES snorted. "The old crocodile! Say, who does he think he is, anyway? I'd like to tell him a thing or two—"

"Well, you'll have to pick another time," Bannister assured him. "I thought we'd better get out before the old duffer had apoplexy. Certainly doesn't love the brethren of the press much, does he?"

GAINES's mutterings subsided in gentle profanity. He concluded, "Gosh, but it's cold," and turned up his coat collar.

The wind, as Parker Coleman had informed them, was coming from the west. It was a gale with a nip in it, a promise of frosty nights to come. Overhead the sky was starless and the only light came from a nose too bright street lamp a dozen yards ahead, where the walk leading to the house branched off from the main sidewalk.

Heads bent to protect themselves from the wind, GAINES and Bannister set off.

"How're we going to get down town?" Bannister wanted to know. "There's a car line over here a couple of blocks or so," GAINES told him. "It's the only way I know. Say, the more I think of the nerve of that guy—"

There was a noise behind them and both turned. Silhouetted in the open doorway was a figure. It called, "Hi, there!" and a moment later Parker Coleman was hurrying toward them.

"You two!" he exclaimed, breathlessly. "Can't I give you a lift down town? I've got my car over here."

They saw the car then, a dark shadow in the driveway. "That's swell," said GAINES. "Did the old geezer send you out to be sure we were really leaving his premises?"

Coleman laughed good naturedly. "No," he said, "he didn't send me. Lord, isn't he a Tartar? Not at all, you know. He can be as decent as anyone. I didn't know it before, but apparently he has a grudge against newspaper men. Told Denise not to see any of them. Of course he was only trying to spare her. I suppose he's upset about this whole thing—"

They had reached the roadster, a large, low-slung model, and Coleman held back the door. "Climb in," he invited, going around to the other side and slipping into the driver's seat.

"This is mighty kind of you," Bannister said as the roadster's engine came to life and the big car backed slowly out into the street. Coleman ignored this. "Where you bound for?" he asked. "Central police station," GAINES told him. "If you can just drop us near a car line—"

"I'll take you all the way," Coleman offered. "I was going down town anyhow. No trouble at all. By the way, does one of you happen to have a cigarette?"

Bannister produced a package and a lighter. When the three cigarettes were glowing Coleman leaned back in the seat.

"I followed you," he explained, "because Denise can handle her father better than anyone else and I thought it would be easier for her if they were alone. Denise Lang is—well, you see, we've been the best of friends ever since we were kids. Denise is absolutely 100 per cent!" There was feeling in the man's voice. Easy to guess how he felt about Denise Lang! "I stopped in to-night," he went on, "to see if there was anything I could do for her. Of course there isn't. There's nothing, I suppose, that anyone can do. The thing is—too terrible!"

"I suppose you knew Tracy King, too?" GAINES asked.

"Well, yes. I've seen him out at the club and met him once or twice with Denise. Very likeable fellow, I thought. Very likeable! If you'd known him at all you'd know how utterly preposterous it is to think that anyone could murder him."

He hesitated. "I suppose it was murder?" he asked. "The police are sure of that?"

"It couldn't have been anything else," GAINES told him. "Charlie Westwood, the coroner, told me there were no powder burns. Besides, a man can't shoot himself without a gun. Whoever shot that bullet took the gun away."

Coleman's lips set in a straight line. "Poor Denise!" he said. "She's trying to be brave about it. 'It struck me,' Bannister put in, 'that the father was more hysterical than the daughter. I shouldn't think a man like that would be any too pleased to have his daughter engaged to marry the master of ceremonies in a movie theatre.'"

"I don't suppose he was," Coleman agreed, "but he's never denied Denise anything in her life. He couldn't very well start doing it now. He—he's a rather hard man to understand. I don't pretend to understand him and I've known him all my life."

Bannister-lino of thought changed suddenly. "You must have been with Miss Lang," he said, "at the time that bullet hit King. He turned toward GAINES. "Didn't the coroner figure it was between nine and nine-thirty that King died?"

"Right," GAINES nodded. Coleman's eyes left the road ahead for an instant. "Is that a fact?" he asked. "I didn't know they could estimate the time so exactly."

GAINES launched into a technical explanation of the coroner's work. Bannister found the details a trifle nauseous and deliberately tried not to listen. Between 9 and 9:30 the night before he remembered only too well where he himself had been. A picture of the girl in the taxicab flashed before him—the girl in the green suit. It must have been almost 9:30 when he met her and 20 minutes later when he left her at the hotel. Tracy King had died between 9 and 9:30, the coroner said. Well, the coroner was an accurate man, extremely accurate in his work.

He heard Coleman asking if he should turn at the next block and GAINES's answer in the affirmative. A minute more and the reporter had drawn up before the ancient brick building that served as Central Police Headquarters.

Bannister and GAINES stopped out of the car. Coleman waved aside their thanks for the lift and the roadster was off again down the street.

"That's a nice guy," GAINES commented as he mounted the steps of the building. Bannister nodded. "Wouldn't you think Denise Lang would prefer him to the crooning orchestra leader?"

"Aw nerts!" GAINES became suddenly philosophical. "Who can tell anything about a woman?"

Inside the building they paused to speak to a blue-coated officer. Yes, he said, Captain McNeal was around the building somewhere. Just came in half an hour before. They might look in his office upstairs.

For the second time that day Bannister climbed the flight of stairs.

SPEEDIER DELIVERY URGED IN COMMONS

London, Dec. 11. In the House of Commons to-day Sir John Wardlaw Milne raised the question of delay in China mails, despatched via Siberia.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Postmaster General, explained that the delays were due to political conditions on the route. Mails forwarded via Vladivostok came from Japan only twice monthly.

As regards Sir John Wardlaw Milne's proposal that representations be made to the Governments concerned for a speedier delivery, Sir Kingsley Wood suggested that the matter be referred to the Foreign Secretary.—Router.

SECURITY

would, however, be a mistake to believe that the nature of these enormous fortifications is purely defensive, as France never fails to assert. To a country maintaining the largest army in the world and an abundance of offensive weapons of every kind the possession of a fortified system in the immediate vicinity of the German frontier means something else besides. It means that it can be used for aggression and as a screen behind which the concentration of the forces may take place in safety. France's eastern fortifications are a jumping board and not a fence, a key to the house of her neighbour and not bolt to secure her own door. Even French deputies pointed out in connection with the armament discussions in the Chamber that such fortifications do not serve the cause of peace, but that they are rather an obstacle to it and the predecessors of a terrible locust. Our account would be incomplete if we were to make no mention of the immense development of the marching routes and strategical railways, the motorisation of large sections of the French army, the increase in its heavy artillery, the strengthening of the frontier regiments, and the numerous aerodromes within the area covered by the system of fortifications. Even if we concede that it is open to doubt whether the latter is mainly intended for attack or for defence, we know—and experts have told us so—that it provides France with absolute security. We also know that France and all the other Powers regard fortifications on land merely as a means of defence and that they, therefore, decline to accept any limitations or restrictions in connection with them. The enormous disparity between Germany on the one hand and her western and eastern neighbours on the other in the domain of fortifications on land and along the coast is such that Germany must demand equality of status in this respect too, failing which she will never be able to organise her own security on adequate lines.

JAPAN'S TARIFF POLICY

The Tokyo Government's intention to impose high discriminatory tariffs against countries having no trade relations with Japan, or against those bringing undue pressure on Japanese merchandise, is interesting at a moment when there is so much controversy over the flooding of the world's markets with Japanese products. The move cannot be directed against Britain, inasmuch as the tariff position between the two countries is controlled by Treaty arrangement. Were the Anglo-Japanese Trade Agreement to be denounced, the situation, of course, would undergo a change, and Japan would be perfectly free to impose discriminatory tariffs against British goods. There is, however, no indication at the moment that Britain desires abrogation of the existing treaties. The British Government's attitude is that, in the matter of competition with Lancashire, efforts to reach some working arrangement should first be made by the industrialists of the two nations. At the same time, it has been made perfectly plain that, if circumstances warrant it, Britain will not hesitate to abrogate the trade agreement. So much is apparent from the recent statement by Mr. Runciman, when he stated that if it becomes necessary to denounce the treaty, the whole subject will be considered "from a different point of view, and with quite a different intent." It is interesting, in passing, to note that the Japanese Government is prepared to accept the Indian Government's counter-proposals made at the Simla conference in regard to Japanese cotton imports into India, although the Japanese manufacturers and traders do not feel inclined to agree thereto. The presumption is, however, that the Government's viewpoint will prevail. If so, there can surely be some hope of Britain and Japan reaching an understanding. Japan's general policy is said to be reciprocity, combined with intensification of control of exports. On this basis, there should be no insurmountable obstacle in the way of an Anglo-Japanese understanding aimed at removing the existing causes of friction. But one vital matter that must be disposed of—and this is a question for Governments, not industrialists—is the pernicious and altogether reprehensible practice of the imitation of British trade marks by Japanese manufacturers.

NOTES OF THE DAY

DISARMAMENT APPROACH

A conflict of view still exists in Europe regarding the best method of approaching the disarmament question. There are two widely separated schools of thought. Sir John Simon is in favour of direct negotiations between France and Germany. Signor Mussolini would have the problem tackled in the spirit of the League of Nations. If not the latter, of the Four-Power Pact. France hardly knows which way to turn, and she may well be wary, having memory of the consequences of Sir John Simon's "direct negotiations" advocacy in the Manchurian imbroglio. Unfortunately, Germany, for some reason, seems to be leaning away from the Italian position.

FOUR-POWER PACT

In the Four-Power Pact it was laid down that in the event of a deadlock on the subject of disarmament, the signatory nations would endeavour to work out an acceptable scheme of their own. Even if the Four-Power Pact did not exist it would seem to be common sense for the nations principally concerned to get together. No theoretical considerations should stand in the way of an attempt to reach an accord. Yet we find legalistic arguments as to whether the Four-Power Pact can work or should be allowed to work. Such contentions are purely verbal. Ratification or no ratification, inside the League or outside the League, under or over a formal pact, there should be no objection to negotiations if by means of such negotiations progress can be achieved.

WHAT IS NEEDED

What is needed is an effective agreement, and that agreement must bring into its circle all the great Powers. Otherwise Europe will be in danger of splitting up into camps, and the old system of a balance of power will return. Whatever momentary passions may be aroused, one thing is certain—that the problems of foreign policy must be solved. The method is of secondary importance. It is of still less importance whether the method is formalized or not.

BERLIN'S FEAR

One of the troubles is the Berlin fear that Europe constitutes a bloc opposed to Germany. It is not, of course, a fact. Italy has clearly shown its sympathy with many of the objectives of Germany, and Great Britain, though friendly to France, is deeply desirous of co-operating with Germany. Nor does France wish to be left tete-a-tete with Germany. It wants very badly the presence of Great Britain and Italy in the conversations which should now be held. And there is need of intermediaries. In the delicate negotiations which are now ahead too many participants are undesirable; but it would be equally undesirable to convert the negotiations into a word duel between France and Germany.

O.K.?

Great Britain has recently been wrestling with one of those mighty problems that nations, in the pride and stride of their strength, are occasionally called upon to tackle. Several readers of the London Observer have been discussing the origin of the expression, "O.K." This piece of linguistic research has been precipitated by a statement in the Supplement to the famous Oxford Dictionary traces the use of O.K. back to 1840 in a Boston newspaper. The Observer's correspondents have not read the Supplement. This is not a reflection upon their intellectual thoroughness; it is merely a more or less inevitable corollary of the fact that the Supplement has not yet been issued.

OCH AYE!

Charles G. Leland, author of the Breitmann Ballads, is said to refer to use of the phrase by Gen. Andrew Jackson in 1838; another authority ascribes it to Jackson seven years earlier; while R. H. Thornton's "American Glossary" gives 1790 as the primary date. A more circumstantially erudite scholar says that O.K. was learned by Jackson from General Pushmataha, who brought it back from among the Choctaw Indians. A fifth correspondent, by a mingled process of argument and intuition, feels that the ultimate source of the term is Scotland. Scots, he contends, often say "Och aye" (phonetically "ok i") instead of "yes." He has, moreover, been told that Scots have been known to emigrate to America. If this is so, what could be more probable than the Americans have borrowed the phrase from them? If the "Och aye" theory be accepted, it seems to give all previous interpretations a reverse; though whether to the extent of administering the K.O. may perhaps be doubted. At any rate, whatever the decision of the lexicographers may be, it probably will be O.K. with the rest of us.

SECURITY

Although Germany has left the Disarmament Conference, the questions discussed at Geneva have lost none of their topical interest. The disarmament problem continues to dominate international relations. It may therefore be helpful to make some reference to a subject which—although it is of very considerable importance to the general position—has so far been ignored by the Conference altogether.

Up to now the subject of fortifications has played a most remarkable part in connection with the disarmament discussions. In so far as it could be the object of any measure leading to disarmament, it was completely relegated to the background. It is true that Germany proposed in the early part of the discussions that the establishment and upkeep of those fortresses and fortified works which, owing to their closeness to the frontier, constitute a direct menace to the adjoining country and which—in so far as coastal fortifications are concerned—dominate the natural waterway, should be prohibited. These proposals have been devoid of any results; and this question of fortifications was hardly touched upon in the disarmament schemes submitted by other members of the Conference. Neither the Hoover Plan of June 22nd, 1932, nor Mr. MacDonald's draft convention made any mention of this subject. Germany, however, is bound to watch all developments in this domain with particular interest, because it is one in connection with which the disarmament clauses of the Versailles treaty have been especially drastic—so drastic, indeed, that her national security has been most seriously jeopardized thereby.

The Versailles treaty compelled Germany to destroy all fortifications—whatever their nature might be—in the demilitarized zone and to dismantle every fortress throughout the country with the exception of Königsberg and a few coastal fortifications. Practically, the realisation of these demands has made Germany an absolutely undefended country. The few fortifications which she is still permitted to have merely serve to underline her defencelessness. From a strategical point of view, her frontiers are as unfavourable as they can be. Except for the Alps in the south and the sea in the north, there is not a single natural feature that affords any protection. At the same time when the victor Powers forced Germany to destroy almost every shred of her system of defences, France decided to rebuild and to modernise her fortifications along her eastern frontier. This gigantic scheme has now been practically completed, the expenditure involved amounting to 6,000 or 7,000 million francs. It should be borne in mind, in this connection, that her natural defences are far better than those of any other Continental country. Apart from her extensive coastline, she is protected by the mountain ranges of the Pyrenees, the Alps and the Jura, and—as far as the German section of her frontier is concerned—by the towering barrier of the Upper Rhine and the Vosges Mountains. Thus, there only remains a section some 140 miles long which—being devoid of naturally defensive features—became the object on which France concentrated her efforts in the domain of fortifications. But even the section of the Upper Rhine has been greatly strengthened by means of a double line of casemates, armoured towers and concrete blockhouses, which dominates without any gap the river and the lowlands intersected by it. Nevertheless, this section fades into insignificance when we compare it with the "land bridge" that connects it, via the Saar and Moselle rivers, with the point where the frontiers of France, Luxembourg and Belgium meet. This is the section where French military science subsidised by the money which only France, the one real victor in the World War could provide, could carry out its greatest achievement.

Within a dense network of fortified positions French military engineers have there created an extensive "zone of death" covered by gun fire from several directions. A carefully designed system of machine-gun positions has been laid out in such a way that each single position can effectively cooperate with all the others. There is practically no piece of undulating ground, no ravine and no defile within this "zone of death" which is inaccessible to devastating fire emanating from the guns in their concealed positions. The anti-tank guns and a number of artificial obstacles prevent the aggressor from using tanks by means of which it was still possible in 1918 to overcome the resistance offered by the fortified positions of the defender. As all the fighting forces are completely isolated from the outer world, gas attacks against them are quite ineffective. Even the heaviest guns possessed by the aggressor are of very little use, not only because of the diminutive size of the objects of attack, but also because of the immense thickness of the walls and ceilings which are made of reinforced concrete.

In order to meet any local incursion of the enemy, powerful defensive works were built to supplement the system of casemates. The batteries installed there dominate the whole of the intervening ground. In addition to them, a number of special fortresses—the so-called "ensembles"—have been erected in important strategic positions on elevated ground, so as to give the defender absolute control of every natural feature that might be used by the aggressor for the purpose of effecting an incursion. They are equipped with those long-distance guns which are capable of carrying fire far into German territory, thus dominating important traffic centres on and even beyond the Rhine. Every single fortification and every line of fire is protected by an ingenious system of barbed-wire entanglements from 60 to 100 feet deep and over 4 feet high. Steep slopes, ditches, concrete walls, iron fences and mines are used against tanks. A network of underground passages connecting every part of the fortified system with every other and with the country at the rear has been laid out from 100 to 225 feet below the surface. All the latest technical inventions, portable railways, hauling plants, lifts, etc., form part of the outfit of this underground shelter. The rest rooms for the troops are provided with every comfort. Fresh air is pumped in from outside. All the installations are operated by electricity. The entering of poison gas is made impossible by working the machinery at excess pressure.

It should be remembered that this huge chain of fortifications connects with similar works in Belgium and that the Metz-Diedenhofen and the Belfort-Verdun lines—which have by no means lost their importance yet—cover it in the rear. It

The Very Idea!

THESE SOCIAL EVILS

By Eddie Kelly, Ludo Expert
FROM Budapest the decree has gone forth that Ping Pong, if not inevitably wicked, has peculiar moral dangers of its own, and keepers of ping pong dens or saloons must register under heavy penalties.—News Item.

WE have suspected this all along, and have often wondered why the I.G.F. hasn't demanded that the Y.M.C.A. should be licensed, like Cabarets.

As we are a member of this den of iniquity we are in a position to give you the low-down on the immoral and wicked forms of entertainment that take place within its precincts.

Before the end of this year, the Association intends, for instance, to stage a brutal ping pong tournament. With wooden bats, the men will be encouraged to swipe a small celluloid ball at each other, until one of them falls battered into insensibility.

Quite apart from the dangerous aspect of this game, we think it's pretty poor sportsmanship. For one thing it encourages cheating. When a man is losing, the temptation to put his foot on the ball, and thus end the game in a draw, often overcomes the finer and manlier instincts in him.

Fortunately the influence of Mr. J. H. Hunt has, so far, been great enough to prevent the introduction of Ludo or marbles into the Y.M.C.A., but this is not sufficient.

This is an age of sport, but, if the Y.M.C.A. is to flourish, its sport must be kept clean.

For instance, can the Y.M.C.A. deny that one of the greatest social evils in the Colony—the game of chess, has been freely adopted by its members?

What will Bishop Hall say when he hears that, in the Y.M.C.A. of all places, Bishops are allowed to mix with Queens?

Sadistic and debased members have even been known to sneak into a quiet corner, surreptitiously open a draughts board, and encourage every form of petty vice in the glorious institution by playing draughts.

We remember once being enveloped into a game of snakes and ladders. Us, we have always been strong for such fine and sportsmanlike games as poker or hazards, and it was our first experience of the lower type.

We threw the dice, which sent us into a flat spin down a serpent.

"Adder-Boy!" we bellowed, going somewhat berserk.

The police got us out somehow.

WELCOME

Mr. Tratman and us, we have had some job keeping things going in the Colony since Sir Thomas Southern, the Colonial Secretary, went home on leave. And now that he's back, we hope that the Colonial Sec. wasn't sea-sick on the voyage out.

LITTLE WOOGY

A TRUE NATURE STORY

Little Woogy sat gazing moodily into the sky, watching a Pooh-Bah bird flying around in over-decreasing circles, uttering its melancholy cry of "Pooh-Bah-h-h, Pooh-Bah-h-h," and finally disappearing into the gloomy pine-forest.

Little Woogy was a white beaver, and lived away in the Great Frozen North where ice and snow lay heavy the year round. With his playmates he would gambol in the snow the livelong day, strewing the virgin snow with footmarks and little chunks of fur.

As he grew up, Little Woogy became older, and exceedingly cunning, for in the great open spaces it is everyone for himself. Day after day he would chase the polar bear, or run after the seals as they went flip-flop across the ice.

One day, after crossing an interminable snowfield, Little Woogy came across a MAN caught in a bear-trap, and, bawling his misfortune, "Bear up! I will not you free," Little Woogy's brown eyes seemed to say, and the man understood, for he ceased to swear.

Then Little Woogy gnawed through the steel trap until at last the man shouted, "Woogy, I am free!" for he had guessed the name of our little hero.

Then out of gratitude, Alaskan Armand the Terrible Trapper, for it was none other, skinned poor Little Woogy, and not very long after poor Little Woogy died from bitterness and exposure.

What a monster is MAN, little children!

THE END.

"Well, Gus, I guess we'll soon be talking about the good old days before repeal."

MADAM— YOU ARE WRONG

THE EXPERTS AND THE JOINT

Housewives' beliefs about the cooking of meat are nearly all wrong according to a report by Dr. R. A. McCance and Mr. H. L. Shipp based on laboratory tests at King's College Hospital and issued by the Medical Research Council.

For instance: Housewives say:

It keeps "the goodness" in the meat if it is plunged into boiling water instead of being slowly heated up to boiling point.

The juices are retained in the meat if it is roasted in an electric oven. The joint does not get so dry.

Heat the oven before putting the joint in. This seals the meat and retains goodness.

Underdone meat is much more nutritious than overcooked meat because there has been less time for shrinkage and loss of nutriment.

The experts say: It makes no difference whether meat was plunged into boiling water at the start or slowly heated to 100 degrees C.

For palatability the electric oven might be beneficial; chemically the evidence is rather the other way.

It appears to be a waste of heat to raise the oven temperature before inserting the meat.

Since most weight lost during cooking is water, overcooked meat, pound for pound, must contain more protein than undercooked meat.

And then the experts proceed to give calculations down to the second decimal point to prove their conclusions—and how can the average housewife argue against decimal points?

MOTOR DRIVING TEST LIKELY

DISCLOSURE IN HOUSE OF LORDS

The possibility of a driving test for all motorists was hinted at by Lord Londonderry (Secretary for Air) during a debate in the House of Lords.

During consideration of the Road and Rail Traffic Bill Lord Kinnoull suggested that the drivers of all goods vehicles should undergo a driving test before they were licensed.

Lord Londonderry, replying for the Government, said:

"If the drivers of goods vehicles are to be subject to a test it would logically follow that the same requirement should be placed on the drivers of all motor vehicles."

It is quite possible that Parliament may reach this decision.

Compensation

"The Minister of Transport proposes to consider the whole question of the statutory requirements relating to the driving of motor vehicles when the official investigation which is now being carried out into the causes and circumstances of fatal accidents is completed. I think when that investigation has taken place the Minister of Transport will be in a position to make recommendations on definite information in the direction which Lord Kinnoull has suggested."

Lord Illife moved an amendment to the Bill with the object of securing compensation for any commercial vehicle owner the renewal of whose licence was refused for reasons such as redundancy. The amendment was rejected.

SUSPENDED OVER 70FT. DROP

GIRL HANGS ON BY ONE HAND

A 17-year-old maid, working at the Clarges Club, Clarges-street, W., slipped through a glass dome and hung for five minutes by one hand 70ft. above the stone floor before she was rescued yesterday afternoon.

The girl, Mary Westripp, whose home is at Clapham, was cleaning the dome inside the club when she slipped from the ledge on which she was standing and crashed through the glass.

She managed to grip part of the loaden framework with one hand and swung there screaming.

Mr. Frank Anford, the secretary of the club, told the News-Chronicle: "Two messengers rushed to pull the girl up, but their foothold was too insecure. Then I grabbed a rope, and, making a noose of it, was able to drop it over the girl's shoulders and pull her to safety."

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

TEAHOUSE FIGHT SEQUEL

A sequel to the fatal fight at the Yim Shing teahouse, of 20, Des Voeux Road West, on Sunday, was the appearance before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Police Court this morning, of Wong Yam on a charge of manslaughter.

According to a police report issued after the incident, a foki of the teahouse, Cheung Fitching, was assaulted by two other foki and subsequently died. The alleged assailants disappeared, but Wong Yam was later arrested.

On the application of Sub-Inspector W. R. Chester Woods, Wong Yam was remanded by the Magistrate for one week.

TIENTSIN-PUKOW RLY. DEFAULT

REPRESENTATIONS TO BE MADE

London, Dec. 11. In the House of Commons today, Sir John Simon, replying to Mr. Moreing with reference to the default on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway loans, said that one of two payments appear to have been made into a special reserve account for the eventual liquidation of the loans, but they are insufficient to make the position in any way satisfactory.

Sir John Simon is instructing the British Minister to renew representations in the matter.—Reuter.

DANISH ROYALTY IN LONDON

LUNCH & THEATRE PARTY

London, Dec. 11. The King and Queen entertained to luncheon, at Buckingham Palace today the King and Queen of Denmark, who are paying a short unofficial visit to England.

Their Majesties afterwards attended a Command performance of Green Room plays given at Drury Lane Theatre on behalf of King George's pension Fund for Actors and Actresses.—British Wireless.

EXECUTION ERROR.

SIR SAMUEL HOARE'S EXPLANATION

London, Dec. 11. In the House of Commons today, Sir Samuel Hoare said that, in respect of the execution of the prisoner at the Lahore gaol on Nov. 21 subsequent to the arrival of a raprieve, orders were despatched by special messenger to the gaol superintendent, instructing him to postpone the execution.

It appears that the order arriving in the morning of the execution. The superintendent, said Sir Samuel, did not receive the order until after the execution, when he proceeded to his office to open letters.

Investigation of the officer responsible is proceeding.—Reuter.

SEIZED BY CUSTOMS JAPAN'S GOODS WITH BRITISH LABEL

Cairo, Nov. 20. Egyptian Customs officers are reported to have seized a quantity of Japanese cotton goods which were stamped "Made in Manchester."

Japan has been making a big "push" to capture the Egyptian market recently. In the first seven months of this year Japanese imports to Egypt totalled £1,540,878, as against £1,166,636 for the corresponding period of last year.

TRIBUTE TO HON. DR. TSO

PORTRAIT UNVEILED AT HOSPITAL

Tso, Chairman of the Western Chinese Public Dispensaries Committee, was unveiled by the Hon. Mr. A. E. Wood, Secretary for Chinese Affairs, at the Tsan Yuk Hospital.

The function was intended as a tribute to Dr. Tso as a forerunner for the good work he has done on behalf of the Hospital, which will be handed over to the Government on January 1, 1934.

A distinguished gathering attended the function, amongst those present being Sir Shouson Chow, Hon. Dr. A. R. Wellington, Director of Medical and Sanitary Services, Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, Hon. O'DUFFY WANTED

NET CLOSES ROUND BLUE SHIRTS

London, Dec. 11. While no official information is available in Dublin in regard to the report that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of General O'Duffy, it is regarded as a certainty that he will be arrested when he reappears in public. In the meantime, General O'Duffy "is on the run."

It is reported that after a meeting at Ballyshannon, where he appeared in the uniform of the "Blue Shirts," General O'Duffy evaded a police cordon, which had been placed around the town, and disappeared.—Reuter.

Count Ahrefeldt, Danish Minister in London, travelled from Harwich with Their Majesties who were met at Liverpool Street Station by the Prince of Wales on behalf of the King and Queen, as well as the Danish Legation Staff and leading Danish residents in London.—British Wireless.

THE SECRET DOCUMENT

Dorlodot and German Armaments

The News-Chronicle Brussels correspondent recently was shown by Baron de Dorlodot, the Belgian Senator, the secret documents on which he based his statement in the Belgian Foreign Affairs Commission that Germany has never disarmed.

The contents of the documents telephoned by our correspondent show that the nature of the revelations made has been grossly exaggerated. The documents are three in number:

The final report of Inter-Allied Commission of Control in Germany;

A letter dated Oct. 20, 1930, from the experts who replaced the Commission when it ceased its work;

A report of the Conference of Ambassadors.

The only document of material substance is the report of the Inter-Allied Commission, which, it should be noted, is now six years old. It shows what has been fairly well known for some years, that on a number of minor technical points Germany's fulfilment of the military clauses of the Peace Treaty may not have been complete.

For example, the Commission does not appear to have been satisfied that it had been able to verify that the manufacture of all prohibited armaments had ceased, owing to the difficulty of thoroughly inspecting the 7,000 factories able to make arms.

Furthermore, the expenditure on armaments, directly or indirectly, in the Reich Budget did not seem to the Commission to be satisfactory.

Reference was also made to the semi-military organisations which sprang up in Germany after the war, and, which, of course, have recently been largely increased—the Nazi Storm Troops being an example.

Of sensational disclosures, however, there is no evidence whatever.

"NO IMPERTINENCE"

Judge and Counsel in Court Scene

A scene between Mr. Justice Swift and counsel occurred in the King's Bench Division recently during which the judge said that he would not have impertinence in his Court.

Mr. H. Infield had been cross-examining a solicitor when the witness protested to the judge that he had already answered the question twice.

The judge remarked that from his experience in the Courts the fact that a witness had been asked a question twice would not prevent him being asked a third time.

Mr. Infield (to witness): "At the risk of incurring his lordship's displeasure I will ask you a fourth time."

Mr. Justice Swift (sharply): No, you will not, and I will not have impertinence in this Court. The judge then told the witness he could leave the box, though counsel said he had other questions to ask.

Later, Mr. Infield protested against "the peremptory closing of his cross-examination," and the judge allowed the witness to be recalled.

MOUNTAIN'S SEX- APPEAL

The Romance of He and Ski

Mt. Kosciuszko has always been a popular winter sports resort in New South Wales but the Government tourist department are hoping to make it even more popular by subtly, very subtly, stressing its sex appeal.

It has been stated that young people who join in the various sports there, particularly skiing, appear to exercise an increased attraction for the opposite sex and that if they have any inclination towards matrimony they will surely find a desirable partner: the magic of the mountain sees to that. At any rate, says Austral News, many couples have recently been married following their meeting at Kosciuszko.

Officials are now hoping that the flower-carpeted Kosciuszko of summer will exercise a similar romantic attraction.

ABERMOR COURT

MODERN ACCESSORIES IN NEW FLATS

Property owners in Hongkong have apparently awakened to the advantage of installing interior accessories in modern flats, and refrigeration, almost universally installed in Shanghai flats, can be expected to play an important part in future specifications.

One of the largest landlord companies in Hongkong, the Humphreys Estate and Finance Company, are pioneers in this respect and, as can be seen from the accompanying photograph of the Abermor Court flats, just completed in May Road, refrigeration has been made a primary consideration.

Shanghai landlords have long since discovered that tenants flock more readily to flats that have modern conveniences, such as refrigeration, built-in radios, and garages, and Hongkong is lagging but slightly in following the lead set by the northern city. In the new May Road flats, Westinghouse Refrigerators have been installed throughout by the local Agents, Messrs. Reiss, Massey and Co.

This firm, since it secured the Westinghouse agency a little over twelve months ago, has installed no less than 180 domestic refrigerators in the Colony.

The favourable exchange position at the present time should also provide an incentive to landlords or tenants to instal refrigerators in readiness for next summer.

One case of small-pox (imported) and one case each of diphtheria and typhoid were reported to the health authorities during the week-end.

COMPLETE ENGLISH TENNIS

RANKING
TWELVE

The complete list of the English L. T. A. national tennis rankings for 1933 is published below. Our first publication of the lists included only the first seven players, but it will now be found that H.K. Lester, C.R.D. Tuckey (the most improved player of the year), J. S. Olliff, E. C. Peters and R. K. Tinkler have found positions. The list is based on performances in singles only for the period April 3 to October 7, 1933. The figures in parentheses denote the positions in the 1932 lists.

MEN	WOMEN
1. F. J. Perry (1).	1. Miss D. E. Round (2).
2. H. W. Austin (2).	2. Miss M. C. Scribner (12).
3. H. G. N. Lee (3).	3. Miss B. Nuthall (5).
4. G. P. Hughes (4).	4. Miss K. E. Stammers (1).
5. Dr. J. C. Gregory (—).	5. Mrs. M. H. King (6).
6. F. H. D. Wilde (12).	6. Mrs. E. F. Whitling (3).
7. E. R. Avery (7).	7. Miss M. Healey (—).
8. H. K. Lester (—).	8. Miss J. C. Ridley (—).
9. C. R. D. Tuckey (10).	9. Miss N. M. Lyle (10).
10. J. S. Olliff (5).	10. Miss E. M. Dearm (—).
11. E. C. Peters (—).	11. Miss Pittman (8).
12. R. K. Tinkler (—).	12. Miss F. James (11).

The official ranking lists for 1933 may be taken to represent the result of a very careful investigation of the performances of some thirty and probably more players of each sex in open competition, not necessarily in this country only, but all over the world. The two lists, wisely limited to a dozen men and a dozen women, are, in other words, based upon what purports to be a solid foundation, writes H. S. Scrivener of the London Morning Post.

In order to try them right out, I should have to indulge in a similar amount of research work so as to be prepared with an equally solid foundation of criticism. I am obviously not in a position to do that, and can therefore only offer my first crude impressions, as a student of form, for what they are worth.

Our Davis Cup team must, of course, be put at the top of the men's list, and no one can possibly take exception to the order in which they are placed. But I am a little surprised to find Dr. Gregory at number 5, although I have a vivid recollection of the fine fight he put up against H. G. N. Lee at Paddington early in the season. At Wimbledon he was beaten in three sets by Menzel, and I should hardly have thought that he has done enough—though he may have been quite capable of doing enough—to justify his exalted position.

ENCOURAGEMENT DESERVED.

I have insisted in the past that Frank Wilde deserves encouragement, and he has not it. He was No. 12 in 1932, and perhaps he is a little battered by being now No. 6. But he has it in him to prove that the rankers are right.

Avery is certainly not too low at No. 7. He is indubitably the best of the rest. Incidentally, the players who have dropped out from last year's ranking for various reasons, are H. F. David, I. G. Collins, N. Sharpe, and K. C. Gander-Dower.

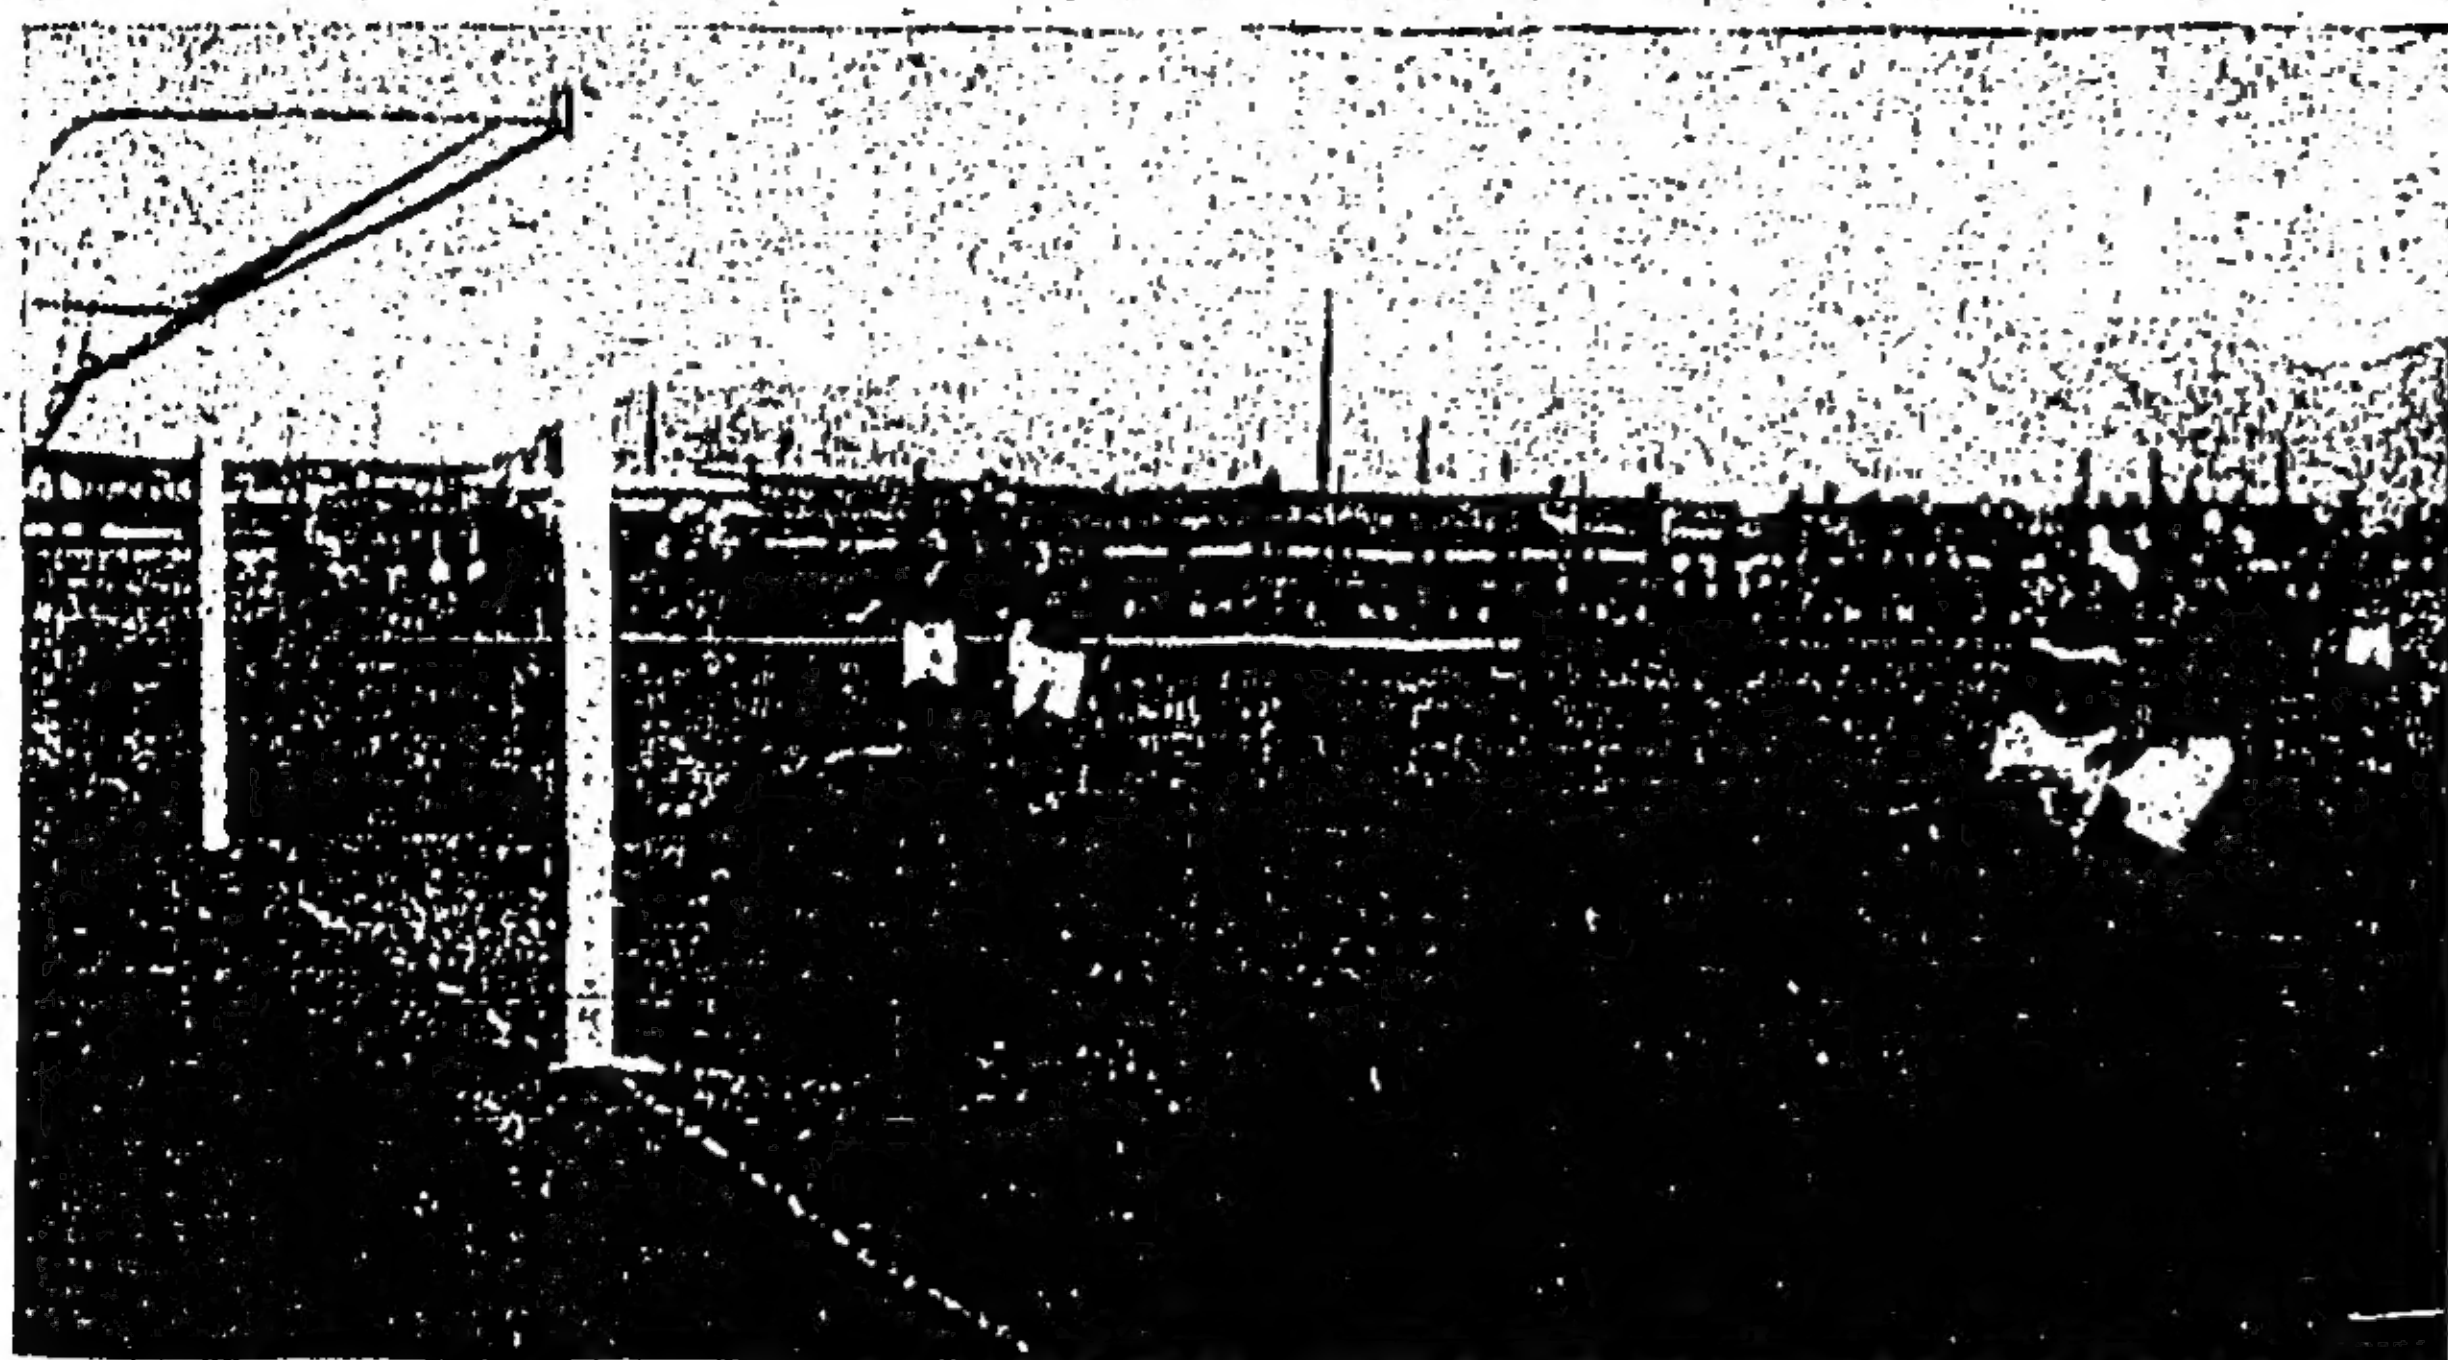

Of the ladies it might tentatively be said that if you bracketed them all together you would not be far out. But you would have to put Miss Round at the top by herself. Miss Scrivener, in spite of occasional lapses, has the best claim to the No. 2 position, and I think Mrs. King is entitled to rank higher than No. 5, although Miss Nuthall's fine record in America has won her third place. The only other comment I feel entitled to make is that I think a place might have been found for Miss Noel.

JATS WIN

Khan played an inspiring game, feeding his forwards with neat passes. Lt. Syer, combined well with Jall, the crack goal-scorer, and led his forwards well.

Habib, appearing at inside-right, gave the Jats the lead early on in the first half and added a second goal from a fine solo effort. Jall scored the third. In the second half, Jall again netted as the result of a pass from Syer, and completed his hat-trick towards the finish of the game. In the closing stages, the Jats

PROBLEM OF EXAMINING
HOCKEY UMPIRES

SOLVED BY THE HONGKONG HOCKEY ASSOCIATION

IMPORTANT MEETING LAST NIGHT

Lieut. Cmdr. F. B. Leigh, R.N., Capt. J. J. Lyons, Jat Regiment and Mr. E. J. R. Mitchell were appointed to act as an Umpires' Board for the examination of persons desiring to qualify as umpires at a meeting of the Hongkong Hockey Association held in the West Lounge of the Y.M.C.A. last evening.

Mr. E. W. Hamilton presided, and there were also present Mr. F. A. Kemp, (secretary), Mr. R. H. Wong, (treasurer), Lieut. Cmdr. F. B. Leigh, (Navy representative), Mr. Ishan Dand (K.I.T.C.), Surgeon-Sing (Radio), Mr. J. J. King (C.B.A.), Mr. A. M. Xavier (Recruit), T. G. Barros (Incognito), Mr. E. L. Gosano (University), Mr. A.E.P. Guest (St. Andrews), A. Xavier (United H. C.), Mr. D. Woodward and Mr. A. A. Dand (H.K. Hockey Club), Mr. O. May (German Club).

Proposing the election of Lieut. Cmdr. Leigh, Capt. Lyons and Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Dand said nothing had been done in regard to umpires up to the present. There were about 20 people anxious to take the examination. He mentioned that Capt. Lyons would be leaving the Colony on December 21 for India with the Jat Regiment and thought it should be left to the Army Hockey secretary to appoint a successor to Capt. Lyons on the Board. He suggested there was an officer in the Punjab Regiment, which was replacing the Jats in Hongkong, who would take over the duties of examiner.

Lieut. Cmdr. Leigh thought the examining of 40 candidates a heavy task and suggested that about six men be examined as a start. He thought they passed they could assist with the examination of the rest of the candidates. To examine 40 people would take three men about three months if they only had to watch the umpiring three matches. In addition they had to be questioned on the rules.

The proposition of Mr. Dand was seconded by Mr. Kemp and carried.

INTERNATIONAL TOURNEY.

In connexion with the proposed International tournament the secretary stated that Surg. Lieut. Cmdr. A. E. Phillips, who had been nominated as representative for Ireland, would be away from the Colony from January until March and it was necessary to elect another representative in his place. He also suggested that in view of the fact that several of H. M. Ships would be absent from the Colony on the dates already fixed for the tournament that the dates be altered.

Lieut. Cmdr. Leigh said it would be rather difficult to make the dates later as the weather would be getting too hot.

It was decided to let the matter stand over until the next meeting. There was a lengthy discussion in committee with regard to the proposed Interport matches and it was eventually decided to appoint a sub-committee to consider the replies received by the Association from the ports communicated with and make arrangements to be approved by the association. Messrs. A. A. Dand, A. M. Xavier and A.E.P. Guest, together with the secretary, were appointed as the sub-committee.

A letter was received from Singapore Hockey Association asking for support to a suggestion they had sent to the B.H.C. for the inclusion of a running commentary of International Hockey games in their Empire Programmes.

It was decided to support the suggestion.

defence was called upon for much work the Brigade forcing many corners, but they bore no fruit except on one or two occasions when Tara Singh's shots just missed the citadel.

LOWER DECK TOURNEY.

In the first round of the Lower Deck Tournament the 4th Submarine Flotilla defeated the 8th Destroyer Flotilla by five goals to nil, and H.M.S. Kent beat H.M.S. Suffolk by six goals to two.

MIMIC BATTLE
AT SEA"Red" Fleet Breaks
Enemy Cordon

Victory fell to the Red fleet, under Admiral Sir William Boyle, in the final fleet exercise of the year, states the Admiralty.

The Blue fleet's object was to intercept the Red fleet on its way south past the Hebrides, and sink as many as possible of the Red battleships.

Contact was established shortly before noon. Red cruisers being sighted near St. Kilda by the Blue destroyers, which were being used in lieu of cruisers. Though the Red cruisers did their best to drive off these destroyers, they were forced to desist by the appearance of one of the Blue battle cruisers.

Surrounded

In the afternoon there was an indecisive long-range action between the Red battleships and the Blue battle cruisers, while the Blue destroyers spread out in an endeavour to surround the Red fleet before nightfall.

It was hoped it would then be possible to push home a torpedo attack on the Red battle squadron, but this attempt failed, the only Red casualty being a cruiser sunk and another damaged. A number of Blue destroyers were adjudged to have been sunk.

Having thus broken through the enemy cordon, the Red fleet proceeded southward, having won.

Repeated, the two fleets proceeded to reach their home ports, though on entering the Channel they had to run the gauntlet of a series of mimic attacks by submarines.

POLICE FIND NEAR DEAD MANBAG WITH UNUSUAL
CONTENTS

London, Nov. 14.

It was revealed yesterday that the London schoolteacher, Mr. R. Watson Scott, who poisoned himself on Polperro Cliffs, Cornwall, after stabbing a retired Unitarian minister, the Rev. R. H. Groves (60), in his bungalow, took cyanide of potassium.

He swallowed only a small portion of the poison. In a container near the body the police found enough to kill several people.

Mr. Scott was carrying a black bag which contained articles of an unusual nature. What these were has not yet been disclosed, but it is probable that they will form exhibits at the inquest to-day.

A black handled knife with a very sharp blade will also be produced. This, it is believed, was the weapon with which Mr. Groves was wounded.

It came to light yesterday that Mr. Scott told a group of friends two months ago that he was going for a trip to Cornwall to "catch a big fish." He returned later and said he had "not had a bite."

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

"Charlie Chan's Greatest Case," the new Fox production depicting the latest adventures of that famous Hawaiian detective, comes to the King's Theatre on Thursday. The picture reunites the three personalities that have carried the inimitable Charlie Chan to the heights of screen popularity. It is an all-new story a vastly different situation and an engrossing atmosphere in which Charlie Chan solves his greatest and most intricate case. Warner Oland again portrays this bland detective whose quaint and human philosophy have delighted audiences for years. Earl Derr Biggers whose vigorous pen created this picturesque character, has here placed him in a situation unprecedented in detective literature. Hamilton MacFadden did the directing. Heather Angel has the leading feminine role in this film, and it is her biggest screen part to date. Others in the cast are Roger Imhoff, John Warburton, Walter Byron, Ivan Simpson, Virginia Cherrill, Francis Ford, Robert Warwick, Frank McGlynn, Clara Blandick, Claude King, William Stack, Gloria Roy and Cornelius Keefe, Lester Cole and Marion Orth adapted the story for the screen.

"Mystery of the Wax Museum"

One of the most spectacular fires ever staged for a motion picture, and one which caused studio executives keen anxiety during its taking, will be seen in the Warner Bros. production, "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," which opens to-morrow at the Queen's. This was the burning of a set representing an old Wax Museum in London, which contained scores of figures modelled in wax. "The Mystery of the Wax Museum" is said to be one of the most exciting mystery thrillers to come to the screen. The action revolves about the strange movements of a terrible monster and a series of mysterious disappearances of famous people and the snatching of dead bodies. Glenda Farrell, Fay Wray and Frank McHugh are featured with Atwill in the cast of all star players. The picture is taken from the play by Charles S. Bolden and adapted for the screen by Don Mullally and Carl Erickson.

"The Masquerader"

A martyr with a sense of humour, Elissa Landi describes herself as "the miraculous survivor of seven bad pictures." Never until her appearance with Ronald Colman in the dual roles of "The Masquerader," showing to-day at the King's Theatre, was she given a part that she would have wanted badly enough to ask for it. Miss Landi wanted to be Eve. She is philosophical, if not optimistic. "The trouble is that I can't be classified as easily as they like to in Hollywood," she says. "I'm not an exotic and I'm not a goo-goo type; they've tried to cast me as one or the other since I've been here. Versatility is a sin in Hollywood." No-one doubts Miss Landi's versatility. Daughter of Countess Zonardi Landi of Austria, wife of J. C. Lawrence, English barrister, she is a linguist, a mezzo-soprano, a dancer, a stage-trained actress with an international reputation and a novelist with her third work, "House for Sale" in its tenth edition and her fourth under way.

"Young Donovan's Kid"

A "different" gang-story is Radio Picture's drama, "Young Donovan's Kid," which will be seen at the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday. The picture stars Richard Dix, famous for his portrayal of Yancey Cravat in "Cimarron," with Marlon Shilling, Jackie Cooper, star of "Skippy" and Frank Sheridan heading an outstanding cast of featured players. The story has to do with the "romantic" period of gang-brotherhood. It deals with the Cor Barn "mob" in the pre-war New York days. No "cannon" stuff in those days. No "talking for a ride." Just the sincere, untarnished dramatic presentation of men who lived by violence, of gangsters who listened to religion occasionally and who tried to go straight, not because of conscience, but because of love.

POUND AND DOLLAR

STABILISATION TREND

New York, Dec. 11.
The process of the dollar and pound stabilisation may be said to have begun, declares the Washington correspondent of the New York Times, who says that the Administration believes that it is definitely able to stabilise the dollar at 62 cents and blames both Britain and France for the delay in reaching an agreement.

The correspondent adds that twice recently the Administration has proposed the dollar-pound stabilisation to the British Government, but Britain allegedly professed her inability to take an effective initiative in the matter at the present time.

The same Journal gives the following reasons for this attitude.

Firstly, the opportunity should first be given to France to abandon the gold standard and revalue the franc; secondly, the presence in London of American capital, which might return to the United States; thirdly, the debt might be turned into an unknown budgeting quantity; fourthly, Britain has not yet decided on a proper ratio for price levels in relation to the export trade; and fifthly, fears that President Roosevelt is not a "sound money man," but an inflationist, and that Congress may upset any stabilisation plan.—Reuter.

High Tariff Wall.

Pasadena, Dec. 11.
A high tariff wall around the United States, and silver as a currency medium within these walls, is the only way that America can be put back on her feet, according to Mr. John Hays Hammond, the famous American mining engineer.

Mr. Hammond unequivocally condemns President Roosevelt's experiments in currency inflation, and the issue of flat dollars. He predicts that the United States will eventually be forced into bimetallicism because for 2,000 years "parity between gold and silver existed on a 16 to 1 basis."

Mr. Hammond does not consider that the United States will gain much advantage by the recognition of Soviet Russia.—Reuter.

VISIT TO LONDON.

M. AVENOL CALLS ON
SIR JOHN SIMON

London, Dec. 11.
Monsieur Avenol, who became Secretary-General of the League of Nations as successor to Sir Eric Drummond, after ten years as Second-in-command as Secretary, reached London yesterday after visits to Rome and Paris.

He will be a guest of Sir John Simon at luncheon at the House of Commons to-day and will address members of Parliament in the Committee Room afterwards.

Later in the week he will meet the Prime Minister and other members of the Cabinet.

The Times, in a leading article, points out that the visit was arranged some months ago, and it is therefore a coincidence that it comes just after the declaration by the Fascist Grand Council in favour of a reformed constitution for the League of Nations. But the paper adds that the subject will no doubt be a topic of discussion during M. Avenol's visit to London, as it was in Rome and Paris.—British Wireless.

The pilot of the plane managed to land in Hyde Park. None of the occupants was injured.—Reuter.

PRECAUTIONS IN FUKIEN

QUESTIONS IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

London, Dec. 11. In the House of Commons today Mr. William Nunn, asked what steps were being taken for the safe removal of British subjects from the disturbed areas of Fukien in view of the Chinese Government's recommendation for the withdrawal of all foreigners in those areas.

The Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, replied that he was not aware that the Chinese Government had recommended the withdrawal of foreigners and no such warning had been received by the British Government.

Sir John Simon further stated that the Chinese Government had been warned of the British Government's apprehension that lives and property of English subjects might be endangered. However, satisfactory assurances had been received with regard to protection of British subjects and the warship Verity was proceeding to Foochow for the purpose of affording the necessary protection to British interests while other naval units would be available for despatch if necessary.

The British authorities were closely watching the situation, concluded the Foreign Secretary.—Reuter.

ARSON CONSPIRACY

WITNESS TELLS OF BIG BRIDES PAID

London, Dec. 11. Dramatic evidence was given by Leopold Harris, at present serving a long sentence of penal servitude for arson, at the resumption of the hearing in the Bow Street Police Court to-day when the charge against ex-Chief Fire Officer Miles, of conspiring to defeat the ends of justice, was heard.

Harris, who was allowed to give evidence seated, on the grounds of illness, testified that in an interview at the end of May, 1930, Miles said that he was very hard up and had got in trouble with the Stock Exchange. He, Miles, required anything up to £1,500 immediately and suggested that he should have a monthly refresher of £40.

To the proposition Harris agreed to pay £25 a month, as he complained that his officers were receiving all the plums and he was doing all the work and getting all the responsibility, receiving nothing except his pay.

Subsequently Miles visited Harris at his house and indicated how he could assist Harris in a most material way by instructing his officers not to interfere with the conduct of Harris's profession and giving information with regard to questions asked by insurance companies' assessors in regard to fires.

Harris then told Miles that his firm was paying Superintendents of the Salvage Corps considerable sums of money, as instanced by Superintendent X.—Reuter.

to-morrow. The Marchese and his wife will converse by radio with their three-year-old daughter at Rome while on board the vessel.

Also on board the Conte Rosso is Mr. Liu Ching-chieh, who is on his way to Berlin to take over the post of Chinese Minister to Germany.—Reuter.

STABILISING DOLLAR

PERPLEXING U.S. REPORTS

MORGENTHAU DENIAL

New York, Dec. 11.

Perplexing statements are being made concerning the reports of negotiations between the United States and Britain seeking the early stabilisation of the dollar and the pound.

Mr. Morgenthau, the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, denies that there have been official talks.

He declares that the Administration is adhering strictly to its gold policy, which rules out stabilisation for the time being at all events, and that if such a move as had been reported had been made, he could not have failed to be aware thereof.

On the other hand, it is learned authoritatively that conversations have been conducted between the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and the Bank of England and the Bank of France.

TECHNICALLY CORRECT.

It is obvious, therefore, that some sort of negotiations towards stabilisation have been in progress, although Washington's denials that official overtures have been made to London are technically correct as the Federal Reserve Bank of New York is a quasi-private institution, just as is the Bank of England, although as a rule they interpret official policy.—Reuter.

SOVIET PAY RISES IN FAR EAST

Influx of Settlers As Explanation

Moscow, Dec. 12.

An increase in wages varying from ten to thirty per cent, has been authorised by the Government for Soviet workers and soldiers in Far Eastern regions.

The move is ascribed to the large influx of settlers.

At the same time, the farmers in the areas concerned are exempted from the compulsory delivery of grain for from five years to ten years.—Reuter.

TERRIBLE CHURCH HOLOCAUST THREAT

TO BURN INMATES ALIVE

Madrid, Dec. 12.

Revolutionary outbreaks, with much bloodshed, are striking terror throughout Spain, and although the situation in Madrid appears to be well in hand, a serious state of affairs rules in the Provinces.

Outrages are occurring all over the country and the Anarchists are extremely active.

The most serious incident of the last twenty-four hours, is reported from Lanaja, where some three hundred rebels have seized all the rich inhabitants and have barricaded them in the local church.

They are threatening to burn them alive.

Civil guards are being rushed from Huesca to prevent holocaust.

TANKS IN ACTION.

Another serious incident occurred at Saragossa, where a large band of Anarchists attacked the City Hall. The guards found themselves in a precarious position despite the fact that they were armed and control of the situation was not gained until after four hours of street fighting in which troops, using tanks, participated.

Sanguinary fighting occurred, but the rebels finally fled in disorder leaving many killed in the streets.—Reuter.

THE WORLD CRISIS

DEBT BURDEN PERIL

GERMAN BANKER'S PREDICTION

Basle, Dec. 12.

The burden of international indebtedness is still the primary factor in the world economic depression and may yet destroy the existing system.

This statement was made by Herr Schacht, the President of the Reichsbank to-day, when addressing the German Chamber of Commerce in Switzerland.

Dr. Schacht stated that during the next six months, Germany, which has recently been effecting roughly fifty per cent, of her foreign transfers, would be unable to maintain that rate.

NEVER!

What was more, he said, unless the world economic situation changed, Germany would never be in a position to meet her full obligations on foreign loans.

The terrific burden of international debts was even now threatening to destroy the world economic system and might do so unless creditors and debtors were prepared to join hands and make a fresh start.—Reuter.

FAIR WEATHER.

The anticyclone remains over North China and South Manchuria and has increased in intensity. Local forecasts:—N.E. winds, fresh; fair.

The unusually early arrival of King Winter has been warmly greeted by skaters in the London area and all day yesterday, up to midnight, the ice revels went on unchecked. Photo shows a typically gay scene.

COTTON POOL PLAN

PRICE LEVEL TO BE SET

PAYMENTS ON OPTIONS

Washington, Dec. 12.

The Farm Administration announces the formation of a cotton pool for the purpose of liquidating the 2,400,000 bales of Government-held cotton, covered by options to the producers.

With funds to be borrowed from the Commodity Credit Corporation, the Administration will advance to option holders four cents a pound.

The pool is authorised to sell cotton at any time on the basis of fifteen cents a pound middling.

After July, 1934, the pool may sell all or any part of its stocks irrespective of what price is obtainable.

The option holders are required to abide by the 1934/35 acreage reduction contract.—Reuter.

LANCASHIRE AND INDIA

ENCOURAGING USE OF COTTON

London, Dec. 11.

The Lancashire cotton authorities are implementing their pledge to increase the use of Indian cotton and have circulated a letter to all spinners on the issue.

An extensive list of mills in which Indian cotton is wholly or partially used has been despatched to the export trade sections of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce with a covering letter appealing for efforts to use Indian cotton.

"Indian cotton," says the letter, "has many untold possibilities. Please encourage its use to the utmost."—Reuter.

MR. LANSBURY'S ACCIDENT

PREMIER EXPRESSES REGRET

London, Dec. 11.

The Prime Minister, in the Commons this afternoon, expressed regret at the absence of the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. George Lansbury, adding, on behalf of members generally:—"We all hope he will speedily be restored to health."

Mr. Lansbury, who is seventy-four, fell down some steps on Saturday and broke his thigh. He is making satisfactory progress.—British Wireless.

KING WINTER COMES TO EUROPE AND U.S.A.

THAMES FROZEN OVER FOR FIRST TIME IN FORTY YEARS

MANY DEATHS IN AMERICA

London, Dec. 11.

An icy Christmas appears to be in store both for America and Europe.

New York reports contain a story of tragedy stating that 25 persons have been killed in the East and Middle West as a direct result of lightning, heavy snowstorms and freezing temperatures.

Twelve thousand cleaners have been called out to clear the snow from the streets of New York.

Two people collapsed and died from cold in New York, while three died in Philadelphia.

A train crashed into a car at Bellefonte, Pennsylvania, during a snowstorm, killing four and injuring three.

Winter has also got an unusually early grip on Britain. Freezing temperatures are reported from all parts of the country. The intensity of the cold is shown by the fact that the Thames is frozen at Kingston, an event which has not happened since 1895.

Thousands were indulging in skating at midnight, the ice being flooded by the lights of dozens of cars.

So bitterly cold is it in Paris that the kerb market on the steps of the Bourse was suspended till braziers had been provided.—Reuter.

SIX KILLED IN HAMBURG AIR DISASTER

CRASH AND EXPLOSION DURING DENSE FOG

TWO FOREIGNERS DEAD

Hamburg, Dec. 11.

Six persons were killed when disaster overtook a large Lufthansa air mail and passenger plane bound from Berlin to Hamburg to-day.

The huge machine crashed when seeking a landing in a dense fog, the collision with the ground being followed by a big explosion.

First reports of the tragedy stated that a honeymoon couple from London, believed to be Americans, named Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barber were among the victims of the tragedy.

LUFTHANSA REPORT.

A later report stated that they were not Americans, and a still later report, issued by Lufthansa, cast further mystery concerning them. The Lufthansa report indicates that both are other than Germans, but that they were not associated in any way.

Mr. Frank Barber's nationality has not been established.

The woman killed was Amella Armstrong. There is no question of them having been a honeymoon couple.

NAZI EXPERT KILLED.

Another of the six victims was the Prussian State Councillor, Herr Wagemann, the Nazi's agricultural specialist, who was responsible for the drafting of the new law on land inheritance.

The disaster was entirely due to the dense fog.

FLYING BLIND.

The pilot soon after leaving Berlin was compelled to fly blind and was relying entirely on wireless directions from the Hamburg aerodrome in order to make his landing. The plane was known to be in close proximity to the aerodrome, but it could not be seen from the ground.

A sudden crash was heard, an explosion followed, upon which the police cleared the aerodrome of all except officials.—Reuter.

FUKIEN FIGHTING DENIED

NANKING STILL HOPING FOR PEACE

WANG CHING-WEI INTERVIEW

Shanghai, Dec. 11.

In a special interview with Reuter, Mr. Wang Ching-wei, President of the Executive Yuan, said that the present was not the time for military leaders to retire, in view of the progress made with the Government's anti-Communist campaign.

The Government still hope for a peaceful settlement of the Fukien revolt, but so long as the Fukien regime work hand in hand with the Communists, a compromise is impossible.

Mr. Wang Ching-wei stated that Mr. Hu Han-min is a strong supporter of the Kuomintang; therefore, it is impossible for him to be sympathetic with the Fukien movement, which is anti-Kuomintang.

SOUTHERN VIEWS.

The Government is making military preparations, but will not attack Fukien until all peaceful efforts for a settlement of the Fukien issue are exhausted.

The object of the trip of the Peace Envoys to the South is to persuade the Central Executive Committee members in South China to visit Nanking to attend the plenary Session which will be held in the Capital on December 20th to discuss the best means for liquidating the Fukien issue.

He said that the Government is not proceeding with negotiations with Japan in regard to through traffic between North China and Manchuria.

Mr. Wang announced that Mr. H. H. Kung and Mr. T. V. Soong will attend the C.E.C. Conference.

NO CLASH.

General Wu Te-chen, Mayor of Greater Shanghai, told Reuter that the reports that a clash had occurred on the Chekiang-Fukien border are groundless.

Government troops are now in Northern Fukien and it is impossible for Fukienese troops to penetrate into Chekiang at present. The border districts are calm.

Mayor Wu denied the report that Mr. H. H. Kung, the Finance Minister, was resigning, declaring that Mr. Kung had already found ways and means to cope with the present financial situation.—Reuter.

LO KUNG-HUA DISMISSED

FRIENDLY WITH CHAN MING-SHU?

Nanking, Dec. 12.

The Executive Yuan, meeting this morning, dismissed Lo Kung-hua, administrative Vice-Minister of the Interior, and appointed Fu Ju-lin instead.

The change, which has been predicted here for some time, was due to Mr. Lo's alleged relations with Chan Ming-shu.—Reuter.

Shanghai, Dec. 12.

It is disclosed that as a result of discussions held here on Sunday between Mr. Wang Ching-wei and Dr. H. H. Kung, Finance Minister, definite measures have been worked out for the opening up of new sources of revenue to redress the current deficits in the Central Government finances.

While decision has been taken on a slight increase in the consolidated taxes on cement, matches and rolled tobacco, customs rates on certain imported articles will be increased in addition to the institution of a special tax on foreign rice and wheat.

It is estimated that the Central Government coffers will be benefited by an additional income of something over $1,000,000 a month.

What kinds of foreign articles will be affected by the increased customs rates has not been disclosed by the authorities.—Central News.

PILOT'S ADVENTURE IN LONDON

Makes A Safe Landing Near Palace

London, Dec. 11.

When a Royal Air Force single-seater plane was being flown across London to-day from Northolt to Hawkinge, Kent, engine trouble developed and the pilot descended through the low clouds to find himself over the heart of the West End.

In searching for a place to land, he skimmed over the roof of Buckingham Palace while the Changing of Guard ceremony was proceeding and while the King was watching from a window.

Avoiding trees, rails and other obstacles he brought the machine safely to ground in Hyde Park.—British Wireless.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

FOR DAY-TAILORED WOOLLENS

Rich Fabrics and Decorative Touches Lend Elegance to Autumn Dresses

By Joan Savoy

INTERESTING woollens fashion those smart little dresses that you wear under your fall coat.

Tailored they are—but at the same time dressy enough to wear to lunch, tea or informal dinner in a restaurant. And that ought to gladden the heart of the girl who goes to business.

Brown, eel grey, green, and all of the rich zinnia shades are good. White or pastel revers and jabots give individuality to many.

Belts are interesting and varied. Unusual buckles have their own place in the sun this season. One particularly lovely frock to wear under your Autumn coat is rough sheer wool in a hand-some shade of brown. The bias cut skirt, which is built up in front on the waist, moulds the figure in the new manner.

Novel Neck Treatment
Stitched belt and epaulettes give a trim, tailored look to the frock, making it ideal for wear on the street or in the office.

The soft, white galyak which goes around the neck and ties in a looped-over fashion bow at the point of the V neckline softens the tailored model, and puts the dress right in line for luncheons and teas. Topped by a brown felt hat, also trimmed with the galyak, it's about the smartest thing a girl can have to wear under her Autumn coat.

An eel grey frock in a corded sheer is another chic little dress which makes you want to remove your coat on the least provocation.

Box Pleat Gives Freedom
The sleeves achieve a subtle fullness at the shoulders by shirring at the armholes. The skirt has a box pleat right in the front, making the dress comfortable for sitting, walking or informal tea dancing.

The unusual collar which goes along down the front of the waist, and the charming little flower on one side of the neckline are pale pink. The belt is of self material (most smart belts are this year) and fastens with a large metal buckle.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Preparation is as important as the permanent itself. No one should plan to get a new permanent without first getting the hair and scalp in a healthy condition. Healthy hair "takes" a much better wave and the ends are less apt to split from the intense heat.

If you are planning to get a new fall permanent, make sure that your hair isn't too dry. If it is, give yourself a month to get it into shape before you make your appointment.

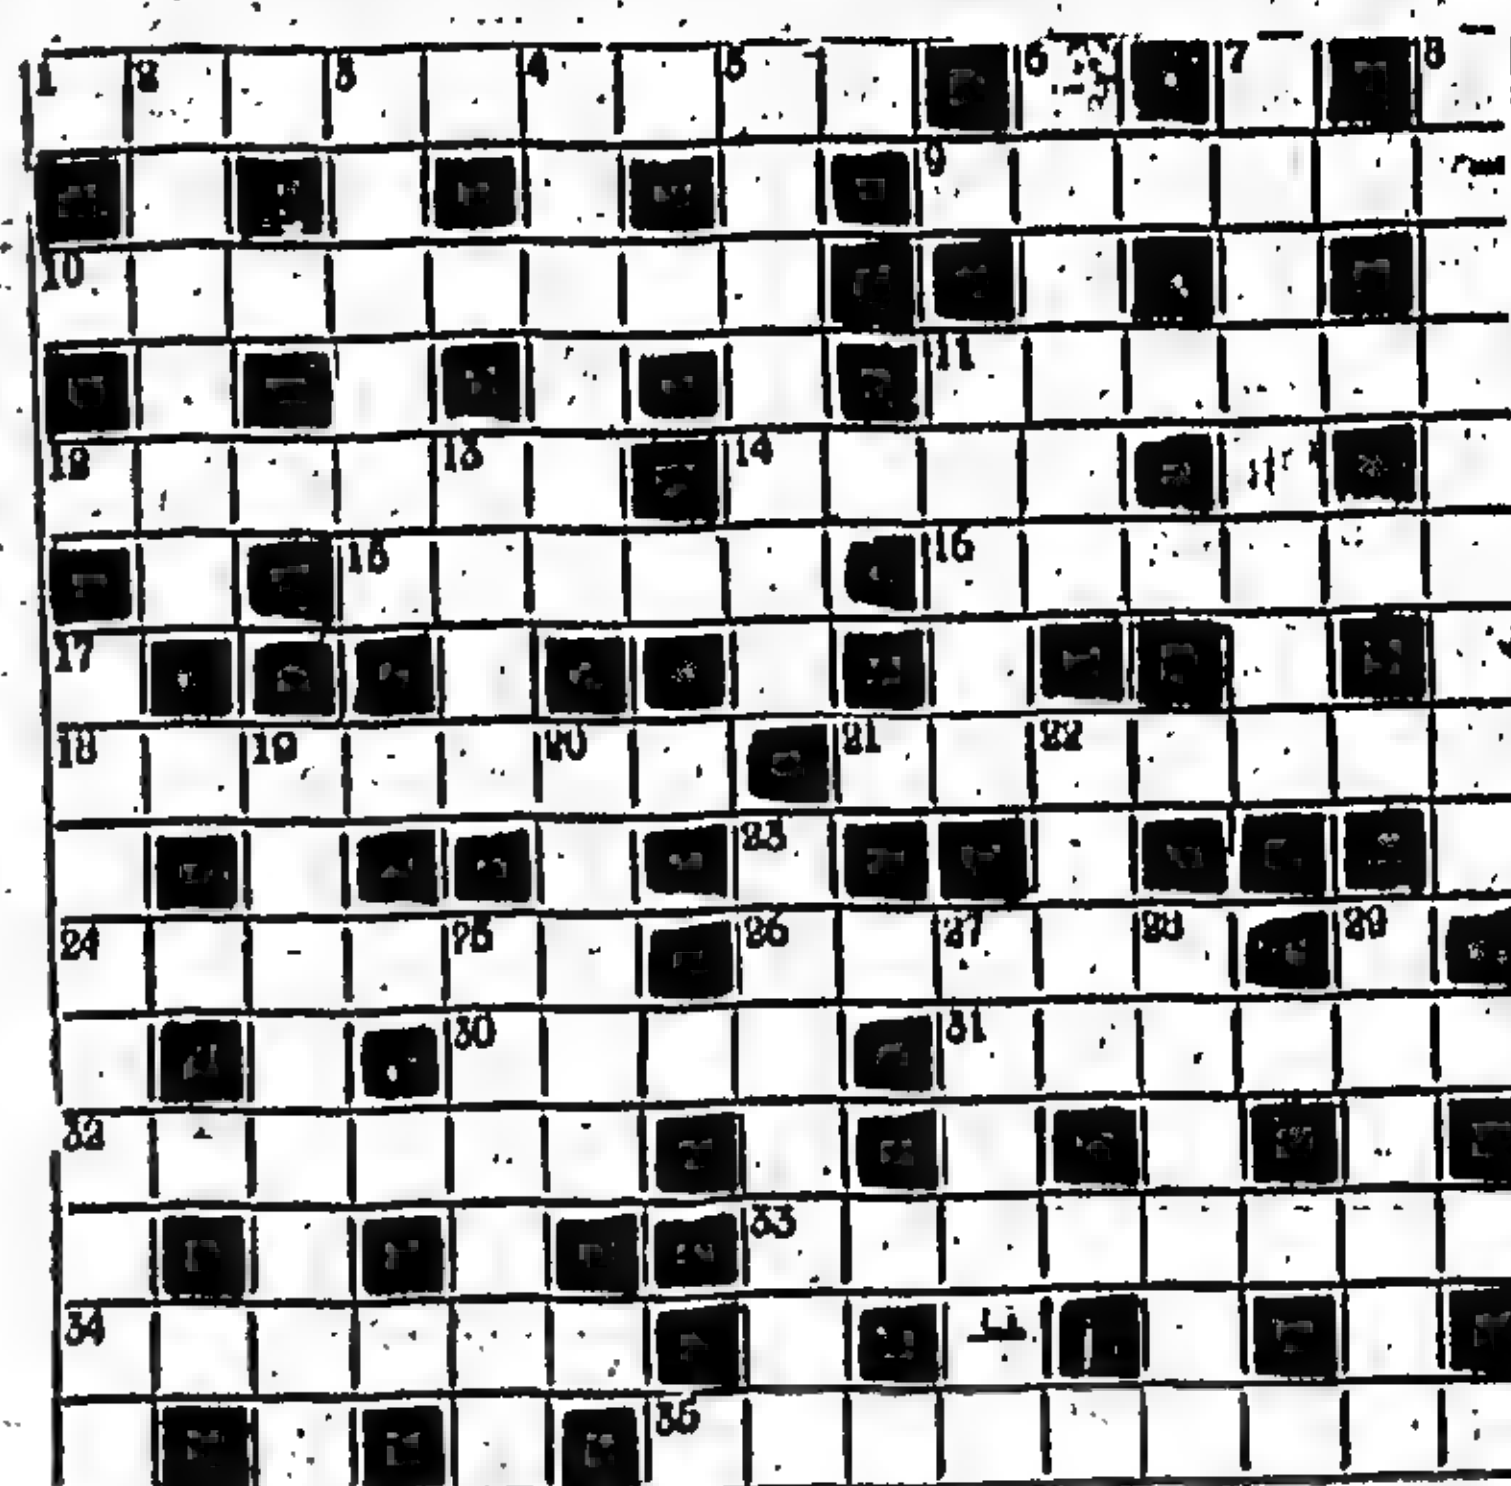

Hot oil shampoos are always a help to hair that is dry or lifeless. You can give them to yourself in your own home.

Oiling the scalp after each shampoo is another excellent home treatment. When your hair is entirely dry, part it into tiny parts all over your head and rub a little white vaseline into your scalp. Be careful not to get it on your clean hair—the scalp will absorb it all if you don't use too much.

Massaging and brushing are absolutely necessary to a healthy scalp. Put your head in your hands, resting your elbows on a table. Then move your scalp with your hands. Try not to move your hands. Do it for ten minutes each night and then brush your hair.

Science now knows that it is the loss of Biocel from the skin which makes women look wrinkled and old. Once this vital element is restored to the tissues, the skin takes on new youthful beauty. True Biocel has been obtained from young animals and is now contained in Creme Tokalos Skinfood Rose Colour, according to the special formula of Prof. Dr. Stejskal. By its use, an aged, faded skin can quickly be rejuvenated, wrinkles disappear and sagging facial muscles be toned up and tightened. Use Creme Tokalos Skinfood Rose Colour at night. It supplies your skin with youth-restoring Biocel and nourishes it while you sleep.

THE UNKNOWN BLONDE

(All Rights Reserved).

BY LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Who killed TRACY KING, orchestra leader found dead in his apartment?
DAVID BANNISTER, author, former newspaper reporter, undertakes to find out.
Police are searching for an "unknown blonde" who visited King shortly before his death. Bannister has seen this girl, but she has disappeared since.
HERMAN SCHULACH, who wrote King a threatening letter, is in jail. He declares his innocence. Bannister works on the case with J. RANDOLPH GAINES, star reporter of the Post. In the dead man's apartment Bannister picks up an old-fashioned wedding picture which he keeps.
AL DRUGAN, friend of King's, says the orchestra leader had been having trouble with JOE PARROT, his former vaudeville partner, and accuses Parrot of the murder. GAINES and Bannister go to see wealthy DENISE LANG, King's fiancée. PAUL KEN COLEMAN, an old friend, also calls. Denise's father enters the room, sees the newspaper men and demands angrily, "What is the meaning of this?"

CHAPTER XVI

The girl was on her feet instantly. "Father, please—" she began.

He did not seem to hear her. Arthur Lang was a man of medium height, slightly built, but anger seemed to make him formidable. He took a few steps forward, then stopped.

"This is an outrage!" he exclaimed dramatically. "Newspaper men—that's what you are! Don't try to tell me you're not—I heard enough to know. Speaking in where you're not wanted. It's an outrage. I told you this morning not to come around my house. I told you to stay away from here!"

"But, Mr. Lang—" began Denise.

There was no use trying to stem the torrent. Bannister saw that as soon as he had spoken.

The older man's voice rose in volume. "I won't have you here!" he stormed, his face flushing crimson. "Don't you understand that? A man has a right to some privacy in his own home! You can print what you want in your filthy sheets; you can peep through the keyholes of other men's homes, but I'll have the law on you, damn you, if you don't get out of here!"

Bannister interrupted again. Already he was on his feet. "Come on, GAINES," he said levelly. "I take it we're being invited to move elsewhere. Sorry, Miss Lang!"

Over his shoulder he caught a glimpse of the girl's white face. Was there mute appeal in that swift glance—something the girl wanted to tell him? Bannister thought so. Perhaps it was nothing more than an apology for her father's behaviour. Whatever it was, there was only a fraction of a second before Bannister had turned away. A moment later he and GAINES were in the hall. The maid supplied their hats and the two men stepped outside.

GAINES snorted. "The old crocodile! Say, who does he think he is, anyway? I'd like to tell him a thing or two—"

"Well, you'll have to pick another time," Bannister assured him. "I thought we'd better get out before the old duffer had apoplexy. Certainly doesn't love the brethren of the press much, does he?"

GAINES's mutterings subsided in gentle profanity. He concluded, "Gosh, but it's cold," and turned up his coat collar.

The wind, as Parker Coleman had informed them, was coming from the west. It was a gale with a nip in it, a promise of frosty nights to come. Overhead the sky was starless and the only light came from a neon too bright street lamp a dozen yards ahead, where the walk leading to the house branched off from the main sidewalk.

Heads bent to protect themselves from the wind, GAINES and Bannister set off.

"How're we going to get down town?" Bannister wanted to know. "There's a car line over here a couple of blocks or so," GAINES told him. "It's the only way I know. Say, the more I think of the nerve of that guy—"

There was a noise behind them and both turned. Silhouetted in the open doorway was a figure. It called, "Hi, there!" and a moment later Parker Coleman was hurrying toward them.

"You two!" he exclaimed, breathlessly. "Can't I give you a lift down town? I've got my car over here."

They saw the car then, a dark shadow in the driveway. "That's swell," said GAINES. "Did the old geezer send you out to be sure we were really leaving his premises?"

Coleman laughed good naturedly. "No," he said, "he didn't send me. Lord, isn't he a Tartar? Not always, you know. He can be as decent as anyone. I didn't know it before, but apparently he has a grudge against newspaper men. Told Denise not to see any of them. Of course he was only trying to spare her. I suppose he's upset about this whole thing—"

They had reached the roadster, a large, low-slung model, and Coleman held back the door. "Climb in," he invited, going around to the other side and slipping into the driver's seat.

"This is mighty kind of you," Bannister said as the roadster's engine came to life and the big car backed slowly out into the street.

Coleman ignored this. "Where you bound for?" he asked. "Central police station," GAINES told him. "If you can just drop us near a car line—"

"I'll take you all the way," Coleman offered. "I was going down town anyhow. No trouble at all. By the way, does one of you happen to have a cigarette?"

Bannister produced a package and a lighter. When the three cigarettes were glowing Coleman leaned back in the seat.

"I followed you," he explained, "because Denise can handle her father better than anyone else and I thought it would be easier for her if they were alone. Denise Lang is—well, you see, we've been the best of friends ever since we were kids. Denise is absolutely 100 per cent!"

There was a feeling in the man's voice. Enay to guess how he felt about Denise Lang! "I stopped in to-night," he went on, "to see if there was anything I could do for her. Of course there isn't. There's nothing, I suppose, that anyone can do. The thing is—too terrible!"

"I suppose you knew Tracy King, too?" GAINES asked.

"Well, yes. I've seen him out at the club and met him once or twice with Denise. Very likeable fellow, I thought. Very likeable! If you'd known him at all you'd know how utterly preposterous it is to think that anyone could murder him."

He hesitated. "I suppose it was murder?" he asked. "The police are sure of that?"

"It couldn't have been anything else," GAINES told him. "Charlie Westwood, the coroner, told me there were no powder burns. Besides, a man can't shoot himself without a gun. Whoever shot that bullet took the gun away."

Coleman's lips set in a straight line. "Poor Denise!" he said.

"She's trying to be brave about it," GAINES said. "It struck me," Bannister put in, "that the father was more hysterical than the daughter. I shouldn't think a man like that would be any too pleased to have his daughter engaged to marry the master of ceremonies in a movie theatre."

"I don't suppose he was," Coleman agreed, "but he's never denied Denise anything in her life. He couldn't very well start doing it now. He—he's a rather hard man to understand. I don't pretend to understand him and I've known him all my life."

Bannister's line of thought changed suddenly. "You must have been with Miss Lang," he said, "at the time that bullet hit King." He turned toward GAINES. "Didn't the coroner figure it was between nine and nine-thirty that King died?"

"Right," GAINES nodded. Coleman's eyes left the road ahead for an instant. "Is that a fact?" he asked. "I didn't know they could estimate the time so exactly."

GAINES launched into a technical explanation of the coroner's work. Bannister found the details a trifle nauseous and deliberately tried not to listen. Between 9 and 9:30 the night before he remembered only too well where he himself had been. A picture of the girl in the taxicab flashed before him—the girl in the green suit. It must have been almost 9:30 when he met her and 20 minutes later when he left her at the hotel. Tracy King had died between 9 and 9:30, the coroner said. Well, the coroner was an accurate man, extremely accurate in his work.

He heard Coleman asking if he should turn at the next block and GAINES's answer in the affirmative. A minute more and the reporter had drawn up before the ancient brick building that served as Central Police Headquarters.

Bannister and GAINES stepped out of the car. Coleman waved aside their thanks for the lift and the roadster was off again down the street.

"That's a nice guy," GAINES commented as he mounted the steps of the building.

Bannister nodded. "Wouldn't you think Denise Lang would prefer him to the crooning orchestra leader?"

"Aw nerfs!" GAINES became suddenly philosophical. "Who can tell anything about a woman?"

Inside the building they paused to speak to a blue-coated officer. Yes, he said, Captain McNeal was around the building somewhere. Just came in half an hour before. They might look in his office upstairs.

For the second time that day Bannister climbed the flight of stairs.

SPEEDIER DELIVERY URGED IN COMMONS

London, Dec. 11.
In the House of Commons to-day Sir John Wardlaw Milne raised the question of delay in China mails, despatched via Siberia.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Postmaster General, explained that the delays were due to political conditions on the route. Mails forwarded via Vladivostok came from Japan only thrice monthly.

As regards Sir John Wardlaw Milne's proposal that representations be made to the Government concerned for a speedier delivery, Sir Kingsley Wood suggested that the matter be referred to the Foreign Secretary.—Router.

MADAM— YOU ARE WRONG

THE EXPERTS AND THE JOINT

Housewives' beliefs about the cooking of meat are nearly all wrong according to a report by Dr. R. A. McCance and Mr. H. L. Shipp based on laboratory tests at King's College Hospital and issued by the Medical Research Council.

For instance:
Housewives say:

It keeps "the goodness" in the meat if it is plunged into boiling water instead of being slowly heated up to boiling point.

The juices are retained in the meat if it is roasted in an electric oven. The joint does not get so dry.

Heat the oven before putting the joint in. This "seals" the meat and retains goodness. Underdone meat is much more nutritious than overcooked meat because there has been less time for shrinkage and loss of nutriment.

The experts say:
It makes no difference whether meat was plunged into boiling water at the start or slowly heated to 100 degrees C.

For palatability the electric oven might be beneficial; chemically the evidence is rather the other way. It appears to be a waste of heat to raise the oven temperature before inserting the meat.

Since most weight lost during cooking is water, overcooked meat, pound for pound, must contain more protein than undercooked meat.

And then the experts proceed to give calculations down to the second decimal point to prove their conclusions—and how can the average housewife argue against decimal points?

MOTOR DRIVING TEST LIKELY

DISCLOSURE IN HOUSE OF LORDS

The possibility of a driving test for all motorists was hinted at by Lord Londonderry (Secretary for Air) during a debate in the House of Lords.

During consideration of the Road and Rail Traffic Bill Lord Kinnoull suggested that the drivers of all goods vehicles should undergo a driving test before they were licensed.

Lord Londonderry, replying for the Government, said:

"If the drivers of goods vehicles are to be subject to a test it would logically follow that the same requirement should be placed on the drivers of all motor vehicles."

"It is quite possible that Parliament may reach this decision."

Compensation

"The Minister of Transport proposes to consider the whole question of the statutory requirements relating to the driving of motor vehicles when the official investigation which is now being carried out into the causes and circumstances of fatal accidents is completed. I think when that investigation has taken place the Minister of Transport will be in a position to make recommendations on definite information in the direction which Lord Kinnoull has suggested."

Lord Illife moved an amendment to the Bill with the object of securing compensation for any commercial vehicle owner the renewal of whose licence was refused for reasons such as redundancy. The amendment was rejected.

SUSPENDED OVER 70FT. DROP

GIRL HANGS ON BY ONE HAND

London, Nov. 14.
A 17-year-old maid, working at the Clarges Club, Clarges-street, W., slipped through a glass door and hung for five minutes by one hand 70 ft. above the stone floor before she was rescued yesterday afternoon.

The girl, Mary Westrip, whose home is at Clapham, was cleaning the dome inside the club when she slipped from the ledge on which she was standing and crashed through the glass.

She managed to grip part of the leaden framework with one hand and swung there screaming. Mr. Frank Anford, the secretary of the club, told the News-Chronicle: "Two men rushed to pull the girl up, but their foothold was too insecure. Then I grabbed a rope, and, making a noose of it, was able to drop it over the girl's shoulders and pull her to safety."

TRIBUTE TO HON. DR. TSO

PORTRAIT UNVEILED AT HOSPITAL

The history of the Chinese Public Dispensary movement, which had its birth in 1906, was outlined yesterday afternoon when a portrait of Hon. Dr. S. W. Tso, Chairman of the Western Chinese Public Dispensaries Committee, was unveiled by the Hon. Mr. A. E. Wood, Secretary for Chinese Affairs, at the Tsan Yuk Hospital.

The function was intended as a farewell party to Dr. Tso as a tribute for the good work he has done on behalf of the Hospital, which will be handed over to the Government on January 1, 1934.

The portrait was subscribed for and presented entirely by the matron, the sisters, and the nursing staff, past and present of the Tsan Yuk Hospital.

A distinguished gathering attended the function, amongst those present being Sir Shouson Chow, Hon. Dr. A. R. Wellington, Director of Medical and Sanitary Services, Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Hon. Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Tso, Hon. Mr. A. E. Wood, Mr. M. K. Lo, Mr. Tang Shiu-kin, Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, Professor and Mrs. R. E. Tottenham, Dr. (Mrs.) A. L. J. Dovey, Dr. D. K. Samy, Mr. Chan Lim-pak, Mr. Li Po-kwai, Dr. W. B. A. Moore, Dr. L. O. Hunter, Dr. Pauline Lai and Miss Leung (Matron of the Hospital).

would, however, be a mistake to believe that the nature of these enormous fortifications is purely defensive as France never fails to assert. To a country maintaining the largest army in the world and an abundance of offensive weapons of every kind the possession of a fortified system in the immediate vicinity of the German frontier means something else besides; it means that it can be used for aggression and as a screen behind which the concentration of the forces may take place in safety.

France's eastern fortifications are a jumping board and not a fence, a key to the house of her neighbour and not bolt to secure her own door.

Even French deputies pointed out in connection with the armament discussions in the Chamber that such fortifications do not serve the cause of peace, but that they are rather an obstacle to it and the predecessors of a terrible calamity.

Our account would be incomplete if we were to make no mention of the immense development of the marching routes and strategical railways, the motorisation of large sections of the French army, the increase in its heavy artillery, the strengthening of the frontier regiments, and the numerous aerodromes within the area covered by the system of fortifications.

Even if we concede that it is open to doubt whether the latter is intended for attack or for defence we know—and experts have told us so—that it provides France with absolute security. We also know that France and all the other Powers regard fortifications on land merely as a means of defence and that they, therefore, decline to accept any limitations or restrictions in connection with them.

The enormous disparity between Germany on the one hand and her western and eastern neighbours on the other in the domain of fortifications on land and along the coast is such that Germany must demand equality of status in this respect too, failing which she will never be able to organise her own security on adequate lines.

O'DUFFY WANTED

NET CLOSES ROUND BLUE SHIRTS

London, Dec. 11.
While no official information is available in Dublin in regard to the report that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of General O'Duffy, it is regarded as a certainty that he will be arrested when he reappears in public. In the meantime, General O'Duffy "is on the run."

It is reported that after a meeting at Ballyshannon, where he appeared in the uniform of the "Blue Shirts," General O'Duffy evaded a police cordon, which had been placed around the town, and disappeared.—Reuter.

VISIT OF ROYALTY.

KING AND QUEEN OF DENMARK IN ENGLAND

London, Dec. 11.
The King and Queen of Denmark reached London last night on a private visit, having travelled from Denmark as private passengers in the motor vessel Bahora. Count Ahreldt, Danish Minister in London, travelled from Harwich with Their Majesties who were met at Liverpool Street Station by the Prince of Wales on behalf of the King and Queen as well as the Danish Legation Staff and leading Danish residents in London.—British Wireless.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

"Charlie Chan's Greatest Case," the now Fox production depicting the latest adventures of that famous Hawaiian detective, comes to the King's Theatre on Thursday. The picture reunites the three personalities that have carried the inimitable Charlie Chan to the heights of screen popularity. It is an all-new story, a vastly different situation and an engrossing atmosphere in which Charlie Chan solves his greatest and most intricate case. Warner Oland again portrays this bland detective whose quaint and human philosophy have delighted audiences for years. Earl Derr Bigger, whose vigorous performance created this picturesque character, has here placed him in a situation unprecedented in detective literature. Hamilton MacFadden did the directing. Heather Angel has the leading feminine role in this film, and it is her biggest screen part to date. The cast also includes Roger Imhoff, John Warburton, Walter Byron, Ivan Simpson, Virginia Cherrill, Francis Ford, Robert Warwick, Frank McGlynn, Clara Blandick, Claude King, William Stack, Gloria Roy and Cornelius Keefe, Lester Cole and Marion Orth adapted the story for the screen.

"Mystery of the Wax Museum"

One of the most spectacular fires ever staged for a motion picture, and one which caused studio executives keen anxiety during its taking, will be seen in the Warner Bros. production, "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," which opens to-morrow at the Queen's. This was the burning of a set representing an old Wax Museum in London, which contained scores of figures modelled in wax. "The Mystery of the Wax Museum" is said to be one of the most exciting mystery thrillers to come to the screen. The action evolves about the strange movements of a terrible monster and a series of mysterious disappearances of famous people and the snatching of dead bodies. Glenda Farrell, Fay Wray and Frank McHugh are featured with Atwill in the cast of all star players. The picture is taken from the play by Charles S. Belden and adapted for the screen by Don Mullally and Carl Erickson.

"The Masquerader"

A martyr with a sense of humour, Elissa Landi describes herself as "the miraculous survivor of seven 'bad pictures.'" Never until her appearance with Ronald Colman in the dual roles of "The Masquerader," showing to-day at the King's Theatre, was she given a part that she would have wanted badly enough to ask for it. Miss Landi wanted to be Eve. She is philosophical, if not optimistic. The trouble is that I can't be assessed as easily as they like to in Hollywood," she says. "I'm not an exotic and I'm not a goo-goo type; they've tried to cast me as one or the other since I've been here. Versatility is a sin in Hollywood." No-one doubts Miss Landi's versatility. Daughter of Countess Zenardi, Landi of Austria, wife of J. C. Lawrence, English baronet, she is a linguist, a mezzo-soprano, a dancer, a stage-trained actress with an international reputation and a novelist with her third work, "House for Sale" in its tenth edition and her fourth under way.

"Young Donovan's Kid"

A "different" gang-story is Radio Pictures' drama, "Young Donovan's Kid," which will be seen at the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday next. The picture stars Richard Dix, famous for his portrayal of Yancey Cravat in "Cimarron," with Marion Shilling, Jackie Cooper, star of "Skippy" and Frank Sheridan heading an outstanding cast of featured players. The story has to do with the "romantic" period of gangster life, it deals with the Car Barr "mob" in the pre-war New York days. No "cannon" stuff in those days. No "taking for a ride." Just the sincere, untarnished dramatic presentation of men who lived by violence, of gangsters who listened to religion occasionally, and who tried to go straight, not because of conscience, but because of love.

POUND AND DOLLAR

STABILISATION TREND

New York, Dec. 11.
The process of the dollar and pound stabilisation may be said to have begun, declares the Washington correspondent of the New York Times, who says that the Administration believes that it is definitely able to stabilise the dollar at 62 cents and blames both Britain and France for the delay in reaching an agreement.

The correspondent adds that twice recently the Administration has proposed the dollar-pound stabilisation to the British Government, but Britain allegedly professed her inability to take an effective initiative in the matter at the present time.

The same Journal gives the following reasons for this attitude.

Firstly, the opportunity should first be given to France to abandon the gold standard and revalue the franc; secondly, the presence in London of American capital, which might return to the United States; thirdly, the dollar might be turned into an unknown budgeting quantity; fourthly, Britain has not yet decided on a proper ratio for price levels in relation to the export trade; and fifthly, fears that President Roosevelt is not a "sound money man," but an inflationist, and that Congress may upset any stabilisation plan.—Reuter.

High Tariff Wall.

Pasadena, Dec. 11.

A high tariff wall around the United States, and silver as a currency medium within these walls is the only way that America can be put back on her feet, according to Mr. John Hays Hammond, the famous American mining engineer.

Mr. Hammond unequivocally condemns President Roosevelt's experiments in currency inflation and the issue of fiat dollars. He predicts that the United States will eventually be forced into bimetalism because for 2,000 years "parity between gold and silver existed on a 16 to 1 basis."

Mr. Hammond does not consider that the United States will gain much advantage by the recognition of Soviet Russia.—Reuter.

VISIT TO LONDON.

M. AVENOL CALLS ON
SIR JOHN SIMON

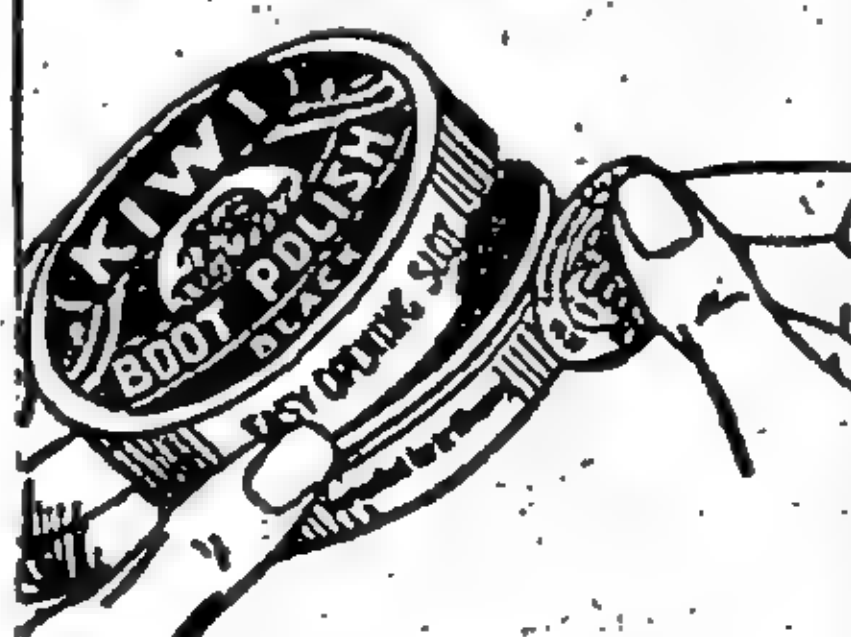

London, Dec. 11.

Monsieur Avenol, who became Secretary-General of the League of Nations as successor to Sir Eric Drummond, after ten years as Second-in-command as Secretary, reached London yesterday after visits to Rome and Paris.

He will be a guest of Sir John Simon at luncheon at the House of Commons to-day and will address members of Parliament in the Committee Room afterwards.

Later in the week he will meet the Prime Minister and other members of the Cabinet.

The Times, in a leading article, points out that the visit was arranged some months ago, and it is therefore a coincidence that it comes just after the declaration by the Fascist Grand Council in favour of a reform constitution for the League of Nations. But the paper adds that the subject will no doubt be a topic of discussion during M. Avenol's visit to London, as it was in Rome and Paris.—British Wireless.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1933.

JAPAN'S TARIFF POLICY

The Tokyo Government's intention to impose high discriminatory tariffs against countries having no trade relations with Japan, or against those bringing undue pressure on Japanese merchandise, is interesting at a moment when there is so much controversy over the flooding of the world's markets with Japanese products. The move cannot be directed against Britain, inasmuch as the tariff position between the two countries is controlled by Treaty arrangement. Were the Anglo-Japanese Trade Agreement to be denounced, the situation, of course, would undergo a change, and Japan would be perfectly free to impose discriminatory tariffs against British goods. There is, however, no indication at the moment that Britain desires abrogation of the existing treaties. The British Government's attitude is that, in the matter of competition with Lancashire, efforts to reach some working arrangement should first be made by the industrialists of the two nations. At the same time, it has been made perfectly plain that, if circumstances warrant it, Britain will not hesitate to abrogate the trade agreement. So much is apparent from the recent statement by Mr. Runciman, when he stated that if it becomes necessary to denounce the treaty, the whole subject will be considered "from a different point of view, and with quite a different intent." It is interesting, in passing, to note that the Japanese Government is prepared to accept the Indian Government's counter-proposals made at the Simla conference in regard to Japanese cotton imports into India, although the Japanese manufacturers and traders do not feel inclined to agree thereto. The presumption is, however, that the Government's viewpoint will prevail. If so, there can surely be some hope of Britain and Japan reaching an understanding. Japan's general policy is said to be reciprocity, combined with intensification of control of exports. On this basis, there should be no insurmountable obstacle in the way of an Anglo-Japanese understanding aimed at removing the existing causes of friction. But one vital matter that must be disposed of—and this is a question for Governments, not industrialists—is the pernicious and altogether reprehensible practice of the imitation of British trade marks by Japanese manufacturers.

NOTES OF THE DAY

DISARMAMENT APPROACH

A conflict of view still exists in Europe regarding the best method of approaching the disarmament question. There are two widely separated schools of thought. Sir John Simon is in favour of direct negotiations between France and Germany. Signor Mussolini would have the problem tackled in the spirit, if not the letter, of the Four-Power Pact. France hardly knows which way to turn, and she may well be wary, having memory of the consequences of Sir John Simon's "direct negotiations" advocacy in the Manchurian imbroglio. Unfortunately, Germany, for some reason, seems to be leaning away from the Italian position.

FOUR-POWER PACT

In the Four-Power Pact it was laid down that in the event of a deadlock on disarmament the signatory nations would endeavour to work out an acceptable scheme of their own. Even if the Four-Power Pact did not exist it would seem to be common sense for the nations principally concerned, to get together. No theoretical considerations should stand in the way of an attempt to reach an accord. Yet we find legalistic arguments as to whether the Four-Power Pact can work or should be allowed to work. Such contentions are purely verbal. Ratification or no ratification, inside the League or outside the League, under or over a formal pact, there should be no objection to negotiations if by means of such negotiations progress can be achieved.

WHAT IS NEEDED

What is needed is an effective agreement, and that agreement must bring into its circle all the great Powers. Otherwise Europe will be in danger of splitting up into camps, and the old system of a balance of power will return. Whatever momentary passions may be aroused, one thing is certain—that the problems of foreign policy must be solved. The method is of secondary importance. It is of still less importance whether the method is formalized or not.

BERLIN'S FEAR

One of the troubles is the Berlin fear that Europe constitutes a bloc opposed to Germany. It is not, of course, a fact. Italy has clearly shown its sympathy with many of the objectives of Germany, and Great Britain, though friendly to France, is deeply desirous of co-operating with Germany. Nor does France wish to be left tête-à-tête with Germany. It wants very badly the presence of Great Britain and Italy in the conversations which should now be held. And there is need of intermediaries. In the delicate negotiations which are now ahead too many participants are undesirable; but it would be equally undesirable to convert the negotiations into a word duel between France and Germany.

O.K.?

Great Britain has recently been wrestling with one of those mighty problems that nations, in the pride and stride of their strength, are occasionally called upon to tackle. Several readers of the London Observer have been discussing the origin of the expression, "O.K." This piece of linguistic research has been precipitated by a statement that the Supplement to the famous Oxford Dictionary traces the use of O.K. back to 1840 in a Boston newspaper. The Observer's correspondents have not read the Supplement. This is not a reflection upon their intellectual thoroughness; it is merely a more or less inevitable corollary of the fact that the Supplement has not yet been issued.

OCH AYE!

Charles G. Leland, author of the Breitmann Ballads, is said to refer to use of the phrase by Gen. Andrew Jackson in 1835; another authority ascribes it to Jackson seven years earlier; while R. H. Thornton's "American Glossary" gives 1790 as the primary date. A more circumstantially erudite scholar says that O.K. was learned by Jackson from General Pushmataha, who brought it back from among the Choctaw Indians. A fifth correspondent, by a married process of argument and intuition, feels that the ultimate source of the term is Scotland. Scots, he contends, often say "Och aye" (phonetically "ok i") instead of "yes." He has, moreover, been told that Scots have been known to emigrate to America. If this is so, what could be more probable than the phrase from them? If the "Och aye" theory be accepted, it seems to give all previous interpretations a reverse; though whether to the extent of administering the K.O. may perhaps be doubted. At any rate, whatever the decision of the lexicographers may be, it probably will be O.K. with the rest of us.

SECURITY

Although Germany has left the Disarmament Conference, the questions discussed at Geneva have lost none of their topical interest. The disarmament problem continues to dominate international relations. It may therefore be helpful to make some reference to a subject which—although it is of very considerable importance to the general position—has so far been ignored by the Conference altogether.

Up to now the subject of fortifications has played a most remarkable part in connection with the disarmament discussions. In so far as it could be the object of any measure leading to disarmament, it was completely relegated to the background. It is true that Germany proposed in the early part of the discussions that the establishment and upkeep of those fortresses and fortified works which, owing to their closeness to the frontier, constitute a direct menace to the adjoining country and which—in so far as coastal fortifications are concerned—dominate the natural waterway, should be prohibited. These proposals have been devoid of any results; and the question of fortifications was hardly touched upon in the disarmament schemes submitted by other members of the Conference. Neither the Hoover Plan of June 22nd, 1932, nor Mr. MacDonald's draft convention made any mention of this subject. Germany, however, is bound to watch all developments in this domain with particular interest, because it is one in connection with which the disarmament clauses of the Versailles treaty have been especially drastic—so drastic, indeed, that her national security has been most seriously jeopardized thereby.

The Versailles treaty compelled Germany to destroy all fortifications—whatever their nature might be—in the demilitarized zone and to dismantle every fortress throughout the country with the exception of Königsberg and a few coastal fortifications. Practically, the realisation of these demands has made Germany an absolutely undefended country. The few fortifications which she is still permitted to have merely serve to underline her defencelessness. From a strategical point of view, her frontiers are as unfavourable as they can be. Except for the Alps in the south and the sea in the north, there is not a single natural feature that affords any protection. At the same time when the victor Powers forced Germany to destroy almost every shred of her system of defences, France decided to rebuild and to modernise her fortifications along her eastern frontier. This gigantic scheme has now been practically completed, the expenditure involved amounting to 8,000 or 7,000 million francs. It should be borne in mind, in this connection, that her natural defences are far better than those of any other Continental country. Apart from her extensive seacoast, she is protected by the mountain ranges of the Pyrenees, the Alps and the Jura, and—as far as the German section of her frontier is concerned—by the twofold barrier of the Upper Rhine and the Vosges Mountains. Thus, there only remains a section some 140 miles long which—being devoid of naturally defensive features—became the object on which France concentrated her efforts in the domain of fortifications. But even the section of the Upper Rhine has been greatly strengthened by means of a double line of casemates, armoured towers and concrete blockhouses, which dominates without any gap the river

The Very Idea!

THESE SOCIAL EVILS

By Eddie Kelly, Ludo Expert

FROM Budapest the decree has gone forth that Ping Pong, if not inevitably wicked, has peculiar moral dangers of its own, and keepers of ping pong dens or saloons must register under heavy penalties.—News Item.

WE have suspected this all along, and have often wondered why the I.G.P. hasn't demanded that the Y.M.C.A. should be licensed, like Cabarets.

As we are a member of this den of iniquity we are in a position to give you the low-down on the immoral and wicked forms of entertainment that take place within its precincts.

Before the end of this year, the Association intends, for instance, to stage a brutal ping pong tournament. With wooden bats, the men will be encouraged to swipe a small celluloid ball at each other, until one of them falls battered into insensibility.

Quite apart from the dangerous aspect of this game, we think it's pretty poor sportsmanship. For one thing it encourages cheating. When a man is losing, the temptation to put his foot on the ball, and thus end the game in a draw, often overcomes the finer and manlier instincts in him.

Fortunately the influence of Mr. J. H. Hunt has, so far, been great enough to prevent the introduction of Ludo or marbles into the Y.M.C.A., but this is not sufficient.

This is an age of sport, but if the Y.M.C.A. is to flourish, its sport must be kept clean.

For instance, can the Y.M.C.A. deny that one of the greatest social evils in the Colony—the game of chess, has been freely adopted by its members?

What will Bishop Hall say when he hears that, in the Y.M.C.A. of all places, Bishops are allowed to mix with Queens?

Sadistic and debased members have even been known to sneak into a quiet corner, surreptitiously open a draughts board, and encourage every form of petty vice in the glorious institution by playing draughts.

We remember once being involved into a game of snakes and ladders. Us, we have always been strong for such fine and sportsmanlike games as poker or hazards, and it was our first experience of the lower type.

We threw the dice, which sent us into a flat spin down a serpent.

"Adder Boy!" we bellowed, going somewhat berserk.
The police got us out somehow.

WELCOME

Mr. Tratman and us, we have had some job keeping things going in the Colony since Sir Thomas Southern, the Colonial Secretary, went home on leave. And now that he's back, we hope that the Colonial Sec. wasn't sea-sick on the voyage out.

LITTLE WOOGY

A TRUE NATURE STORY

Little Woogy sat gazing moodily into the sky, watching a Pooh-Bah bird flying around in ever-decreasing circles, uttering its melancholy cry of "Pooh-Bah-h-h, Pooh-Bah-h-h," and finally disappearing into the gloomy pine-forest.

Little Woogy was a white beaver, and lived away in the Great Frozen North where Ice and Snow lay heavy the year round. With his playmates he would gambol in the snow the livelong day, strewing the virgin snow with footmarks and little chunks of fur.

As he grew up, Little Woogy became older, and exceedingly cunning, for in the great open spaces it is everyone for himself. Day after day he would chase the polar bear, or run after the seals as they went flip-flop across the ice.

One day, after crossing an interminable snowfield, Little Woogy came across a MAN caught in a bear-trap, and, bewailing his misfortune, "Bear up! I will set you free," Little Woogy's brown eyes seemed to say, and the man understood, for he ceased to swear. Then Little Woogy gnawed through the steel trap until at last the man shouted, "Woogy, I am free!" for he had guessed the name of our little hero.

Then out of gratitude, Alaskan Armand the Terrible Trapper, for it was none other, skinned poor Little Woogy, and not very long after poor Little Woogy died from bitterness and exposure.

What a monster is MAN, little children!

THE END.

"Well, Gus, I guess we'll soon be talking about the good old days before repeal."

NEW TRADE IN THE MAKING

ROOSEVELT

AGENCY

Washington, Dec. 11. Mr. George N. Peek, who figured prominently in the Agricultural Department dispute last week when he demanded from Mr. Wallace the removal of certain members of the "Brains Trust" is likely to be given a new post in the Administration.

It will be recalled that he threatened to resign his position as Chief of the Farm Administration Bureau and it is believed that the resignation has been allowed to take effect.

President Roosevelt to-day summoned a conference of departmental chiefs, including Mr. Peek, with the object of organizing a Foreign Trade Agency, of which Mr. Peek is expected to become the Chief.

The task of the agency will be to find reciprocal export markets for American goods.

FARM CRISIS.

Meanwhile the situation in the agricultural field and commodity markets generally is causing increasing concern in official quarters.

In a message to the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation, President Roosevelt stated to-day that the farmers of the United States must cooperate to the full if the agricultural programme is to have any hope of success.

He pointed out that the maladjustment between supply and demand which had been years in the making could not be cured overnight.

NOT OUT OF WOOD.

He submitted that money was now getting into the hands of those who were most in need of it, but, at the same time, they were forced to admit that the United States could not claim to be out of the wood.

The latest Governmental statistics on the general commercial situation in the country show that the wholesale prices of commodities have risen only seventeen per cent, since April despite the fact that the Administration's chief energies have been devoted to the task of price-raising.

PRICE DECLINE.

More serious indeed is the fact that prices in the last fortnight have declined to 70.7, practically annulling all the advantages gained since the advent of the gold plan.

At the same time, the price of gold has risen to sixty-four per cent, above its statutory price. Mr. Jesse Jones, chairman of the R.F.C., announces that domestic gold purchases up to date total 420,000 ounces, costing fourteen million dollars.—Reuter.

AGENCY FORMED.

Later, President Roosevelt has announced the formation of a special Foreign Trade Agency under Mr. Peek for the purpose of correlating internal production, with effective foreign purchasing power, and developing, by reciprocal tariff, barter, and other international arrangements, the export trade of the United States.—Reuter.

The Rev. John A. Bennitt and his wife, who have been appointed to the staff of St. Paul's Boys' College, will arrive in Hongkong aboard the P. and O. liner Naldora on Thursday, from England. This is their first visit to the Far East.

The Rev. Mr. Bennitt, who is 26 years of age, is M. A. (Cambridge) and was educated at Marlborough College. He was later curate in Newcastle and has done a lot of student work. His home town is Bletchley, Bedfordshire. He is to teach mathematics, and is well-known to Bishop Hall. He was recently married.

Mrs. Bennitt, formerly Miss Richardson, is a B.A., and also holds the Diploma in Education. She has done much educational work in Newcastle.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennitt will take up residence at St. Paul's College Hostel.

SOVIET AND SINKIANGLAND CESSION
TREATY DENIED

Moscow, Dec. 11. The TASS Agency has been authorized to deny categorically the report in the Chinese newspaper, Chung Pao, that the Soviet Government has concluded an agreement with the Sinkiang Government relative to the conceding of Chinese territories to the U.S.S.R.

The policy of the Soviet Government, says the official statement, consists of the maintenance of the inviolability of Chinese territories in respect of its sovereign rights.

It was alleged in a message from Nanking yesterday that Ma Chung-ying, the Mahomedan general, has seized a consignment of Russian arms and ammunition destined for the ex-Governor of Sinkiang (Hsin-kiang).—Reuter.

ANGLO-ESTHONIAN TRADE

London, Dec. 11. Colonel Colville to-day received the Estonian delegation who will negotiate a commercial agreement with the United Kingdom. An exchange-of-views took place, and the discussions will be continued.—British Wireless.

The Hon. Sir Thomas and Lady Southern returned to the Colony yesterday by the Blue Funnel liner Aeneas. Other passengers included Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cornell, Mr. and Mrs. D. Kelvin-Stark, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lanyon.

Two cases of larceny by servant were dealt with by Mr. Baifour in the Central Police Court this morning, in both instances the defendants being bound over. Tang Tip, 20, house cooler, charged with taking a piece of velvet from the Majestic Dancing Academy, pleaded guilty, while Wai Kin-sang, 35, a salesman, admitted taking three dozen bottles of Tiger Balm medicine, oil from 132, Des Voeux Road Central.

INCIDENT ON LOCAL
TRAINCHINESE DETECTIVE
BOUND OVER

Described as a detective employed in Chinese territory, Chan Kui was charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on three counts (1) travelling on the Kowloon Canton Railway without a ticket, (2) intending to travel without a ticket and (3) using threatening language to an employee of the K.C.R. when asked to produce a ticket.

Defendant denied the charges. Inspector Lane told the Court that the K.C.R. were pressing the case because they wanted to protect their employees from such people as defendant.

It was stated by Chau Yui, a traffic inspector, that when he asked defendant for a ticket, the latter said that as he was a detective in Chinese territory, he did not have to pay. Witness insisted and defendant threatened to hit him. When the train got to Yau-mat, witness called for a policeman and defendant was given in charge.

Two other witnesses corroborated the statement that defendant had used threatening language, but said they saw defendant offering a $5 note in payment.

His Worship discharged defendant on the first two charges, but bound him over in the sum of $75 for six months in respect of the third.

A sale of work is to be held in St. Stephen's Girls' College and Fairview School, in aid of the M.C.L. and local charities, next Saturday, December 16. The sale will be opened at 11 a.m. by Mrs. E. D. C. Wolfe.

For absconding himself from the House of Detention without permission, Wazula Franz, aged 21, was sent to prison for three weeks by Mr. Baifour in the Central Police Court this morning. Sergeant Mottam prosecuted.

Visitors to the recent H.K. Art Club exhibition were asked to vote which exhibit they liked the best. The result of the voting, which formed a feature of this year's exhibition is a prize for Mrs. H. C. J. Ache of St. Stephen's College, Stanley. The prize winning picture is No. 18—a charming water colour—"Temple at Kowloon City."

HITLER DEMANDS
ARMY
OF 300,000 MENDIPLOMATIC
ACTIVITY

FRANCE WAITS

London, Dec. 11. The first hint was given to-day of the demands which Germany is making of France in the negotiations which are now proceeding in more or less informal fashion.

Reuter's Berlin correspondent announces that M. Poncet, the French Ambassador, called upon Herr Hitler to-day and discussed points in the German proposals for some time.

From Paris, it is understood that M. Poncet was instructed particularly to ask Herr Hitler to explain his attitude towards the Brown Shirts as co-existent with a standing army of three hundred thousand men, which it is revealed Hitler is demanding.

Lord Tyrrell, the British Ambassador to France, is returning to Paris to-morrow, and M. Benes, the Czechoslovakian Foreign Minister is due in Paris on Thursday. M. Paul Boncour will confer with both, after which he will reply to Herr Hitler's demands.

GOVERNMENTS TALKING.

At question time in the House of Commons to-day, the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, stated that in accordance with the suggestion made by the Bureau of the Disarmament Conference, the British Government were in communication with the various Governments concerned with a view to advancing, in every way possible, the work which lay before the General Commission.

He added that it would not be in the public interest to make any statement at present.

NO ITALIAN NOTE.

Sir John Simon said that no official communication had been received from the Italian Government regarding the question of an alteration in the constitution, the powers or the procedure of the League of Nations, and he had no statement to make on the matter at the moment. It was, however, receiving the most careful attention.

M. AVENOL'S VISIT.

The Secretary General of the League, M. Avenol, who is now visiting London, was the guest at a Government luncheon given at the House of Commons to-day. Many members of both Houses of Parliament, including several Cabinet Ministers, the President Disarmament Conference, Mr. Arthur Henderson, and Lord Cecil, were among those present.

After the luncheon, Sir John Simon, who presided, and M. Avenol had a long conversation.—British Wireless and Reuter.

The forthcoming wedding is announced of Mr. Richard Seymour Johnson, shipping assistant of the Hongkong Club, and Miss Angela Leonard, of 55, Langridge Road, London.

COMPLETE ENGLISH TENNIS

RANKING LISTS

THE FIRST TWELVE

The complete list of the English L. T. A. national tennis rankings for 1933 is published below. Our first publication of the lists included only the first seven players, but it will now be found that H.K. Lester, C.R.D. Tuckey (the most improved player of the year), J. S. Olliff, E. G. Peters and R. K. Tinkler have found positions. The list is based on performances in singles only for the period April 8 to October 7, 1933. The figures in parentheses denote the positions in the 1932 lists.

MEN	WOMEN
1. F. J. Perry (1)	1. Miss D. E. Round (2)
2. H. W. Austin (2)	2. Miss M. C. Scriven (12)
3. H. G. N. Lee (3)	3. Miss D. Nuthall (5)
4. G. P. Hughes (4)	4. Miss K. E. Stammers (1)
5. Dr. J. C. Grey (5)	5. Mrs. M. R. King (4)
6. F. H. D. Wilde (12)	6. Mrs. E. F. Whittingstall (3)
7. E. R. Avery (7)	7. Miss M. Healey (1)
8. H. K. Lester (—)	8. Miss J. C. Ridley (—)
9. C. R. D. Tuckey (10)	9. Miss M. M. Lylo (10)
10. J. S. Olliff (5)	10. Miss E. M. Dearman (—)
11. E. G. Peters (—)	11. Mrs. J. B. Pittman (8)
12. R. K. Tinkler (—)	12. Miss F. James (11)

The official ranking lists for 1933 may be taken to represent the result of a very careful investigation of the performances of some thirty and probably more players of each sex in open competition, not necessarily of this country only, but all over the world. The two lists, wisely limited to a dozen men and a dozen women, are, in other words, based upon what purports to be a solid foundation, writes H. S. Scriven of the London Morning Post.

In order to try them right out, I should have to indulge in a similar amount of research work so as to be prepared with an equally solid foundation of criticism. I am obviously not in a position to do that, and can therefore only offer my first crude impressions, as a student of form, for what they are worth.

Our Davis Cup team must, of course, be put at the top of the men's list, and no one can possibly take exception to the order in which they are placed. But I am a little surprised to find Dr. Gregory at number 5, although I have a vivid recollection of the fine fight he put up against H. G. N. Lee at Wimbledon early in the season. At Wimbledon he was beaten in three sets by Mennel, and I should hardly have thought that he had done enough, though he may have been quite capable of doing enough—to justify his exalted position.

ENCOURAGEMENT DESERVED.

I have insisted in the past that Frank Wilde deserves encouragement, and he has got it. He was No. 12 in 1932, and perhaps he is a little battered by being now No. 6. But he has it in him to prove that the rankers are right.

Avery is certainly not too low at No. 7. He is undoubtedly the best of the rest. Incidentally, the players who have dropped out from last year's ranking for various reasons are H. F. David, I. G. Collins, N. Sharpe, and K. C. Candor-Dowse.

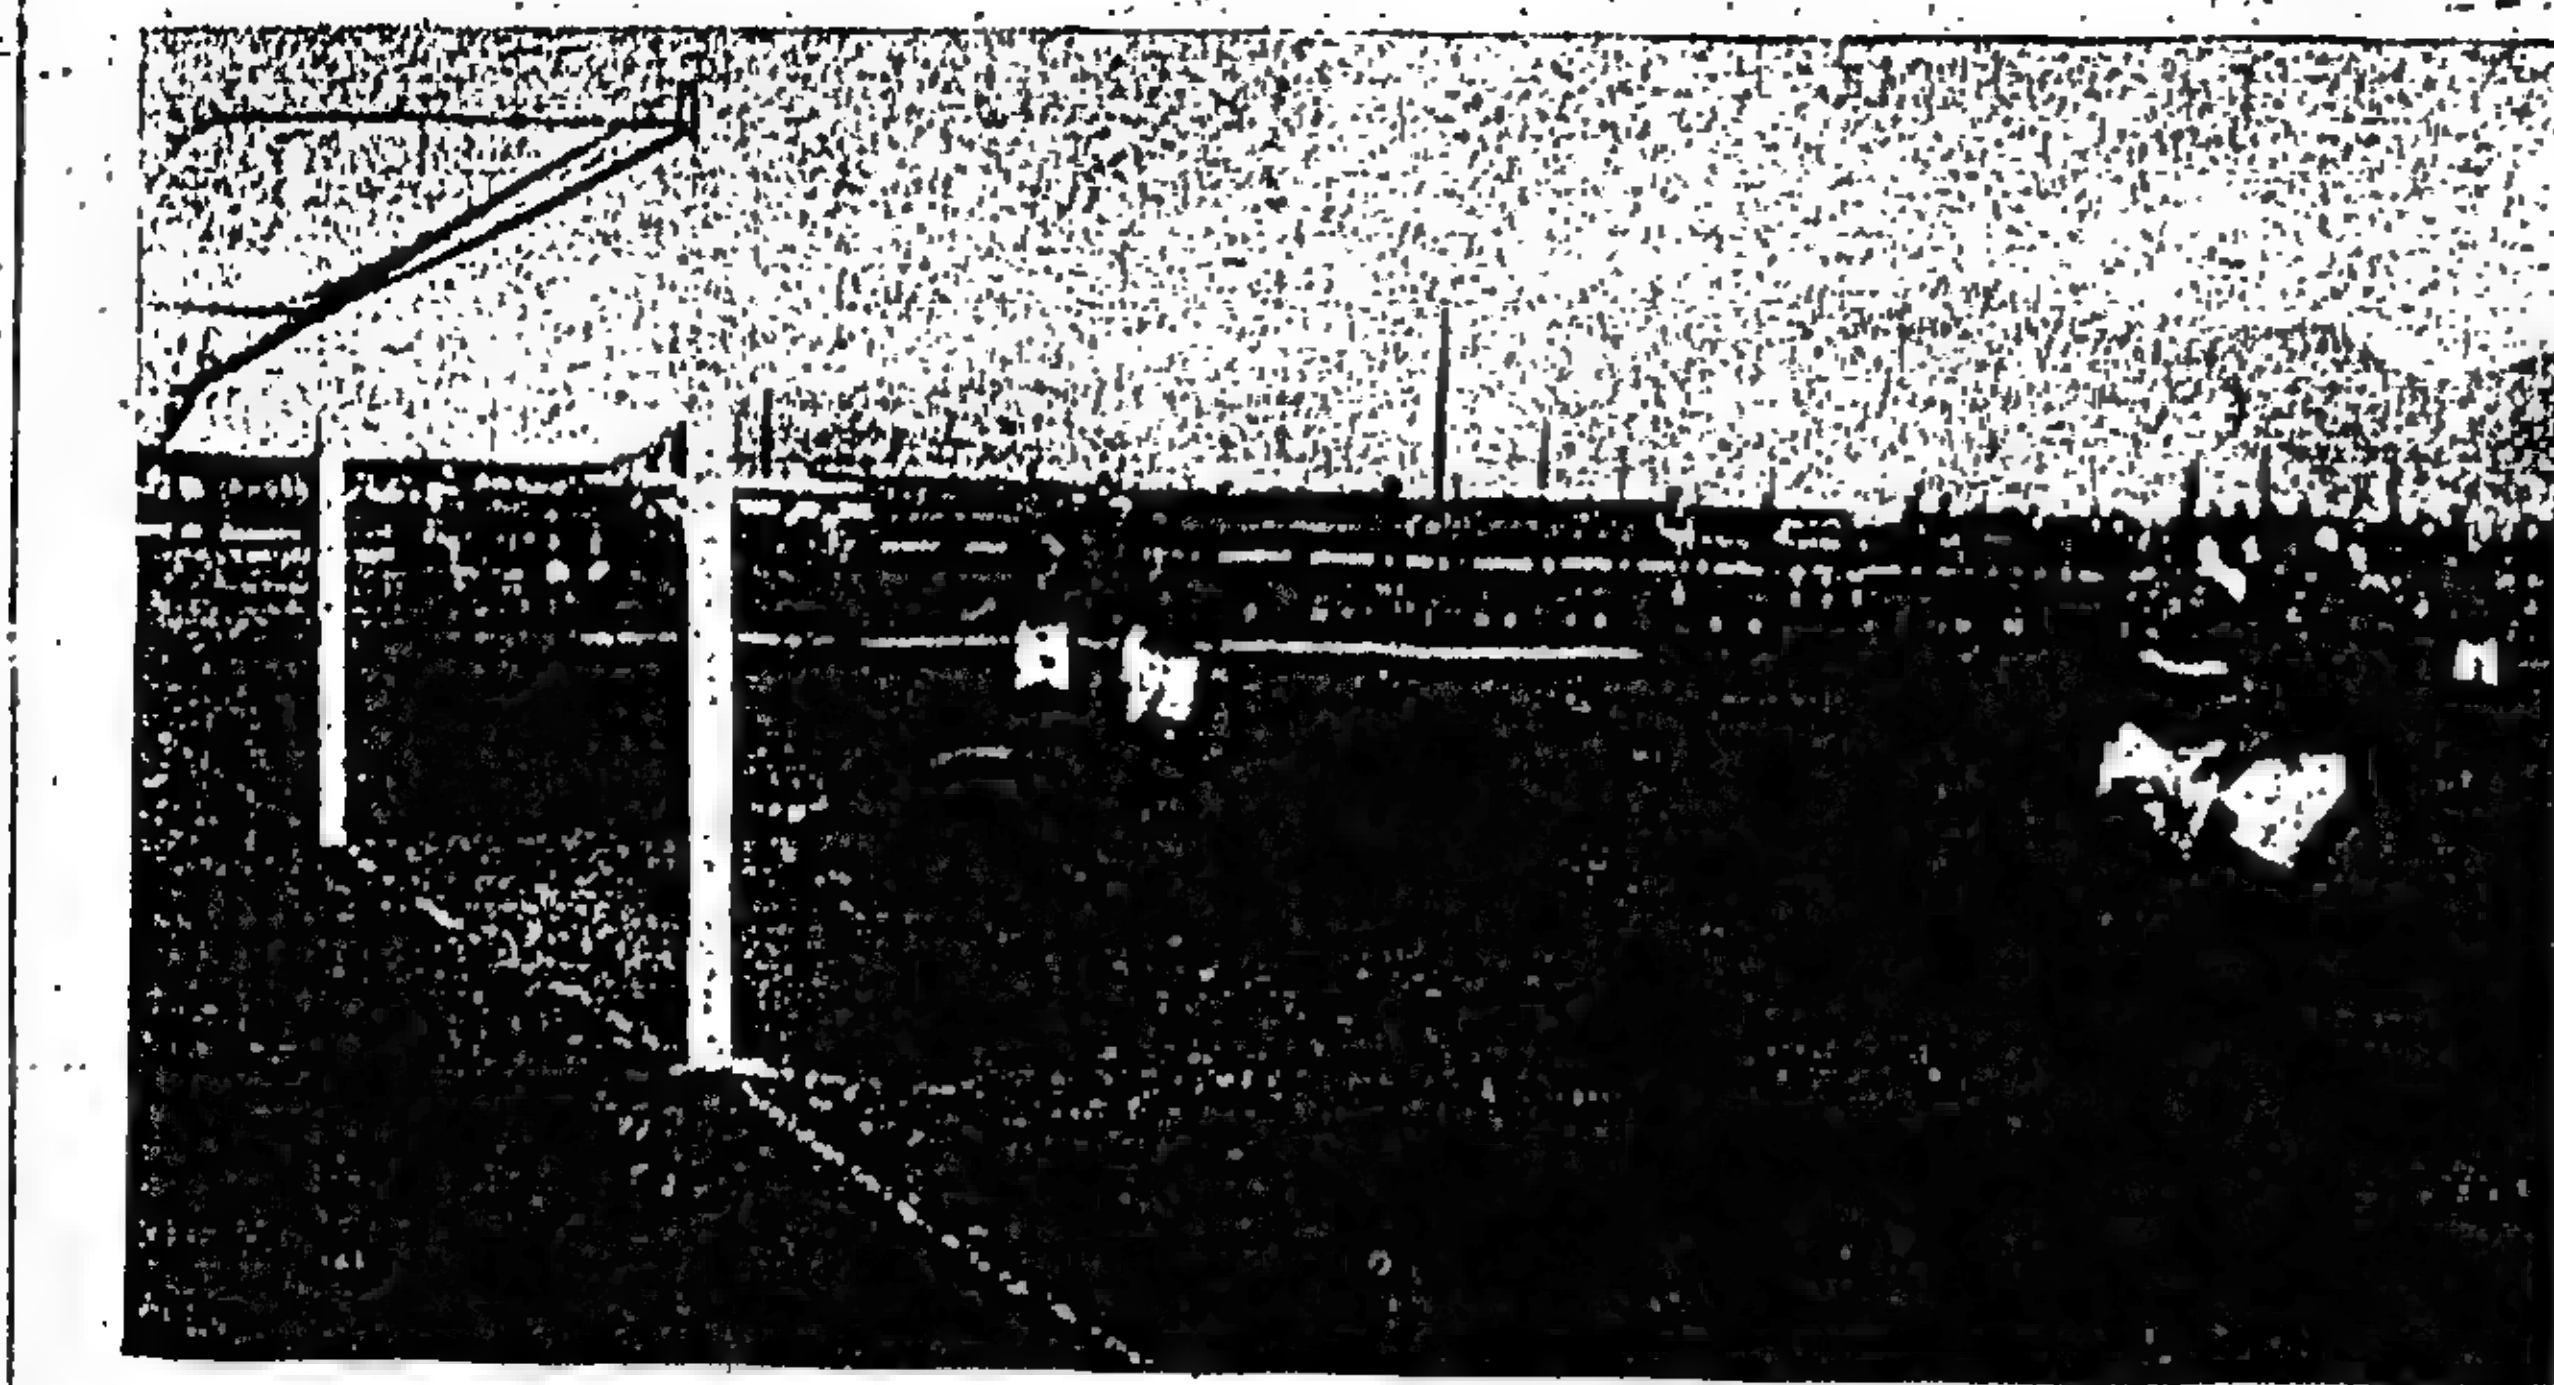

Of the ladies it might tentatively be said that if you bracketed them all together you would not be far out. But you would have to put Miss Round at the top by herself. Miss Scriven, in spite of occasional lapses, has the best claim to the No. 2 position, and I think Mrs. King is entitled to rank higher than No. 5, although Miss Nuthall's fine record in America has won her third place. The only other comment I feel entitled to make is that I think a place might have been found for Miss Noel.

JATS WIN EASILY

Khan played an inspiring game, feeding his forwards with neat passes. I. Syer, combined well with Jallil, the crack goal-scorer, and led his forwards well.

Habib, appearing at inside-right, gave the Jats the lead early on in the first half and added a second goal from a fine solo effort. Jallil scored the third. In the second half, Jallil again netted as the result of a pass from Syer, and completed his hat-trick towards the finish of the game. In the closing stages, the Jats

PROBLEM OF EXAMINING HOCKEY UMPIRES

SOLVED BY THE HONGKONG HOCKEY ASSOCIATION

IMPORTANT MEETING LAST NIGHT

Lieut. Cmdr. F. B. Leigh, R.N., Capt. J. J. Lyons, Jat Regiment and Mr. E. J. R. Mitchell were appointed to act as an Umpires' Board for the examination of persons desiring to qualify as umpires at a meeting of the Hongkong Hockey Association held in the West Lounge of the Y.M.C.A. last evening.

Mr. E. W. Hamilton presided, and there were also present Mr. F. A. Kemp, (secretary), Mr. R. H. Wong, (treasurer), Lieut. Cmdr. F. B. Leigh, (Navy representative), Mr. Jahan Dad (K.I.T.C.), Surgin Singh (Radio), Mr. J. J. King (C.B.A.), Mr. A. M. Xavier (Rocrois), T. G. Barron (Incognitos), Mr. E. L. Gosane (University), Mr. A.E.P. Guest (St. Andrews), A. Xavier (United H. C.), Mr. R. Woodward and Mr. A. A. Dand (H.K. Hockey Club), Mr. O. May (German Club).

Proposing the election of Lieut. Cmdr. Leigh, Capt. Lyons and Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Dand said nothing had been done in regard to umpires up to the present. There were about forty people anxious to take the examination. He mentioned that Capt. Lyons would be leaving the Colony on December 21 for India with the 1st Regiment and thought it should be left to the Army Hockey secretary to appoint a successor to Capt. Lyons on the Board. He understood there was an officer in the Punjab Regiment, which was replacing the Jats in Hongkong, who would take over the duties of examiner.

Lieut. Cmdr. Leigh thought the examining of 40 candidates a heavy task and suggested that about six men be examined as a start and if they passed they could assist with the examination of the rest of the candidates. To examine 40 people would make three men about three men, if they only had to watch the umpiring three matches. In addition they had to be questioned on the rules.

The proposition of Mr. Dand was seconded by Mr. Kemp and carried.

INTERNATIONAL TOURNEY.

In connexion with the proposed International tournament the secretary stated that Surg. Lieut. Cmdr. A. E. Phillips, who has been nominated as representative for Ireland, would be away from the Colony from January until March and it was necessary to elect another representative in his place. He also suggested that in view of the fact that several of H. M. Ships would be absent from the Colony on the dates already fixed for the tournament that the dates be altered.

Lieut. Cmdr. Leigh said it would be rather difficult to make the dates later as the weather would be getting too hot.

It was decided to let the matter stand over until the next meeting. There was a lengthy discussion in committee with regard to the proposed Interport matches and it was eventually decided to appoint a sub-committee to consider the replies received by the Association from the ports communicated with and make arrangements to be approved by the association. Messrs. A. A. Dand, A. M. Xavier and A.E.P. Guest, together with the secretary, were appointed as the sub-committee.

A letter was received from Singapore Hockey Association asking for support to a suggestion they had sent to the B.B.C. for the inclusion of a running commentary of International Hockey games in their Empire Programmes.

It was decided to support the suggestion.

defence was called upon for much work the Brigade forcing many corners, but they bore no fruit except for one or two occasions when Tara Singh's shots just missed the goal.

LOWER DECK TOURNEY.

In the first round of the Lower Deck Tournament the 4th Submarine Flotilla defeated the 8th Destroyer Flotilla by five goals to nil and H.M.S. Kent beat H.M.S. Suffolk by six goals to two.

MIMIC BATTLE AT SEA

"Red" Fleet Breaks Enemy Cordon

Victory fell to the Red fleet, under Admiral Sir William Boyle, in the final fleet exercise of the year, states the Admiralty.

The Blue fleet's object was to intercept the Red fleet on its way south past the Hebrides, and sink as many as possible of the Red battleships.

Contact was established shortly before noon, Red cruisers being sighted near St. Kilda by the Blue destroyers, which were being used in lieu of cruisers. Though the Red cruisers did their best to drive off these destroyers, they were forced to desist by the appearance of one of the Blue battle cruisers.

Surrounded

In the afternoon there was an indecisive long-range action between the Red battleships and the Blue battle cruisers, while the Blue destroyers spread out in an endeavour to surround the Red fleet before nightfall.

It was hoped it would then be possible to push home a torpedo attack on the Red battle squadron. But this attempt failed, the only Red casualty being a cruiser sunk and another damaged. A number of Blue destroyers were adjudged to have been sunk.

Having thus broken through the enemy cordon, the Red fleet proceeded southward, having won.

Reunited, the two fleets proceeded to reach their home ports, though on entering the Channel they had to run the gauntlet of a series of mimic attacks by submarines.

POLICE FIND NEAR DEAD MAN

BAG WITH UNUSUAL CONTENTS

London, Nov. 14. It was revealed yesterday that the London schoolteacher, Mr. R. Watson Scott, who poisoned himself on Polperro Cliff, Cornwall, after stabbing a retired Unitarian minister, the Rev. R. H. Groves (60), in his bungalow, took cyanide of potassium.

He swallowed only a small portion of the poison. In a container near the body the police found enough to kill several people.

Mr. Scott was carrying a black bag which contained articles of an unusual nature. What these were has not yet been disclosed, but it is probable that they will form exhibits in the inquest to-day.

A black handled knife with a very sharp blade will also be produced. This, it is believed, was the weapon with which Mr. Groves was wounded.

It came to light yesterday that Mr. Scott told a group of friends two months ago that he was going for a trip to Cornwall to "catch a big fish." He returned later and said he had "not had a bite."

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done 2,430,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—The market closed irregular due to late profit-taking after a rise of as much as five points on account of encouraging business reports which offset the firmness of the U.S. dollar and unchanged gold price. The dollar was firm due to stabilization talk including reports from Paris that the Federal Reserve Bank, Bank of England and the Bank of France have already discussed preliminary negotiations with reference to stabilization of the dollar to the pound. Under-Secretary of State, Mr. Phillips, however said that the United States made no such action and that stabilization of the dollar is still a matter for future action.

The Iron and Steel Institute report steel operations at 31.5%, highest since October 23rd due to the completion of fourth quarter specifications and expanded buying by automobile companies in preparation for the manufacture of new models.

Our New York office cable: Stocks:—Met moderate selling but maintained a firm tone especially rails. Wheat:—A severe cold wave is creating apprehension over the winter wheat crop. Purchases are advised on setbacks. Cotton:—The market was steady. Offerings well taken. There are increasing reports of business upturn which is encouraging. Silver:—The market was quiet.

The R.F.C. gold price yesterday was $34.01 unchanged.

PRECAUTIONS IN
FUKIENQUESTIONS IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

London, Dec. 11.
In the House of Commons today Mr. William Nunn, asked what steps were being taken for the safe removal of British subjects from the disturbed areas of Fukien in view of the Chinese Government's recommendation for the withdrawal of all foreigners in those areas.

The Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, replied that he was not aware that the Chinese Government had recommended the withdrawal of foreigners and no such warning had been received by the British Government.

Sir John Simon further stated that the Chinese Government has been warned of the British Government's apprehension that lives and property of English subjects might be endangered. However, satisfactory assurances had been received with regard to protection of British subjects and the warship Verity was proceeding to Eochow for the purpose of affording the necessary protection to British interests while other naval units would be available for despatch if necessary.

The British authorities were closely watching the situation, concluded the Foreign Secretary.—Reuter.

ARSON CONSPIRACY

WITNESS TELLS OF BIG
BRIBES PAID

London, Dec. 11.
Dramatic evidence was given by Leopold Harris, at present serving a long sentence of penal servitude for arson, at the resumption of the hearing in the Bow Street Police Court to-day when the charge against ex-Chief Fire Officer Miles, of conspiring to defeat the ends of justice, was heard.

Harris, who was allowed to give evidence seated on the grounds of illness, testified that in an interview at the end of May, 1930, Miles said that he was very hard up and had got in trouble with the Stock Exchange. He, Miles, required anything up to £1,500 immediately and suggested that he should have a monthly refresher of £40.

To the proposition Harris agreed to pay £25 a month, as he complained that his officers were receiving all the plums and he was doing all the work and getting all the responsibility, receiving nothing except his pay.

Subsequently Miles visited Harris at his house and indicated how he could assist Harris in a most material way by instructing his officers not to interfere with the conduct of Harris's profession and giving information with regard to questions asked by insurance companies' assessors in regard to fires. Harris then told Miles that his firm was paying Superintendents of the Salvage Corps considerable sums of money, as instanced by Superintendent X.—Reuter.

M.C.C. GETS TESTY ON TESTS

LATEST CABLE TO AUSTRALIA

London, Dec. 12. The Marylebone Cricket Club have considered the Board's last cable and have replied:

"With reference to your cable of November 10, you must please accept our cable of October Ninth, which speaks for itself, as final."

"We cannot go beyond the assurance therein given."

"We shall welcome the Australians who come to play cricket with us next year."

"If, however, your Board of Control decide that such games should be deferred, we shall regret their decision."

"Please let us know your Board's final decision as soon as possible and, in any event, before the end of the year."

The Australian Board of Control's cable, which induced this reply read:

"We appreciated the terms of your cablegram of October 9 and assume that such cable is intended to give the assurance we asked for in our cablegram on September 22."

"It is on this understanding that we are sending a team in 1934."

TWO INDIANS AT LAW

ONE "FOOLED BY ROGUES"

What was described by a solicitor as a case of rogues falling out and an innocent man bearing the blame, was a claim by one Indian against another before Mr. Justice Lindsay at the Supreme Court this morning.

Maha Singh, registered money-lender, living at Tai Hang Village, Hongkong, sued Wali Mohamed, car driver, of the Charter Road Stand, for $500.

A sum of $300 was claimed on a promissory note drawn up in March, and a further $350 instalments due on a promissory note drawn up at the same time.

Mr. H. Lo, appearing for plaintiff, said his client was ill and had given power of attorney to Meher Singh who was present to give evidence and act for him. The action centred round a car which defendant had bought from Karta Singh for $2,000, some of which he had borrowed from plaintiff.

Mr. M. A. da Silva, representing defendant, said the origin of the claim went back much further than that. The owner, Karta Singh, had bought the car in 1931 and had also had to go to a lending syndicate for the money. It was a case of his client being fooled by rogues.

The hearing was adjourned to December 19.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

TEAHOUSE FIGHT SEQUEL

A sequel to the fatal fight at the Yim Shing teahouse, of 23, Des Voeux Road West, on Sunday, was the appearance before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Police Court this morning, of Wong Yam on a charge of manslaughter.

According to a police report issued after the incident, a fook of the teahouse, Cheung Pit-cheung, was assaulted by two other fooks and subsequently died. The alleged assailants disappeared, but Wong Yam was later arrested.

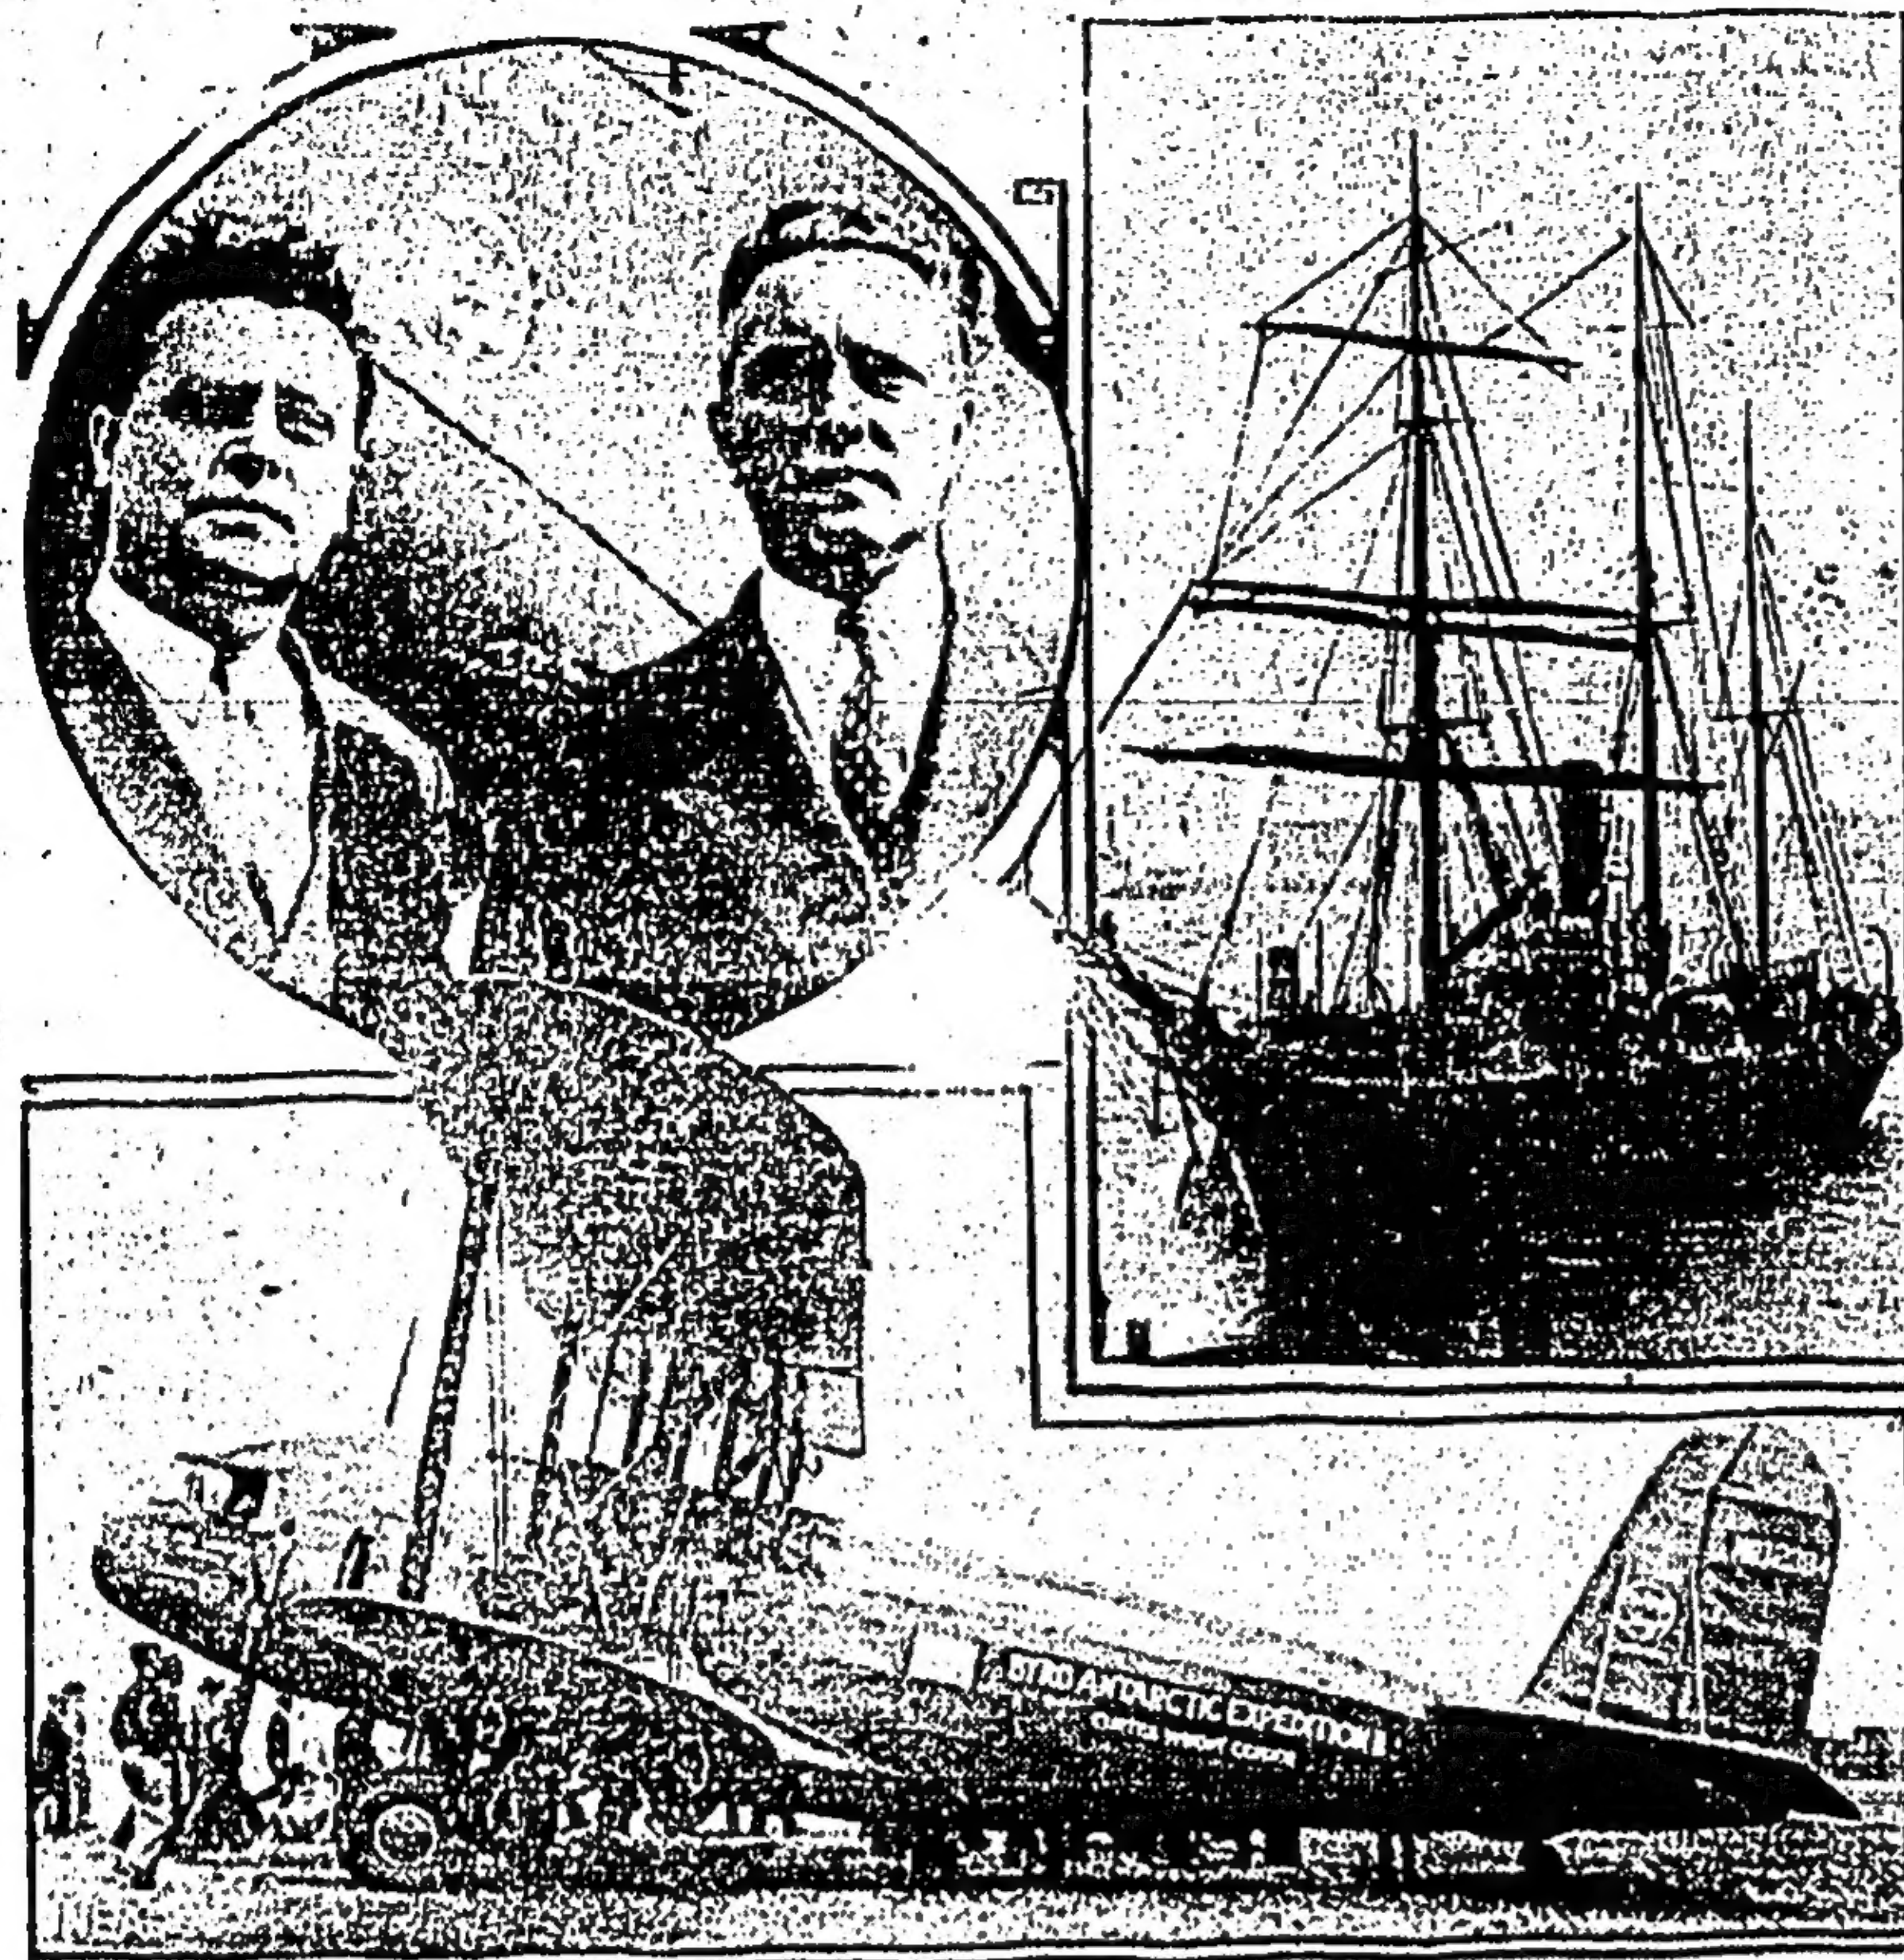

On the application of Sub-inspector W. R. Chester Woods, Wong Yam was remanded by the Magistrate for one week.

PARTY LEAVES NEW ZEALAND

HUGE PLAN FOR FLYING OVER THE SOUTH POLE

ZEST FOR ADVENTURE

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Dec. 12.

REAR-ADMIRAL BYRD, HERO OF A DOZEN FEATS OF DARING AND ADVENTURE, LEFT NEW ZEALAND TO-DAY ON HIS SECOND ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION, SAYS REUTER.

With him he carries two aeroplanes and several dog-teams.

The expedition will stay in Antarctica for at least two years, according to present plans, during which Rear-Admiral Byrd hopes to complete a survey of a large part of hitherto uncharted territory.

He expects to fly over the South Pole, repeating his feat of 1929, though hoping that it has a less exciting finish. It will be recalled that after traversing the South Pole, having previously mapped about 40,000 square miles of territory, his plane was dashed to pieces by a terrific gale, following a forced landing.

The leader and his companions were fortunately rescued by a rescue party which went out in search of them from the base camp, 128 miles away.

This time, Admiral Byrd is taking with him a huge twin-engine Curtiss Condor machine capable of carrying men, instruments, supplies and sled-dogs.

OTHER ADVENTURES.

Byrd first came into prominence when in 1926 he made the first aeroplane flight over the North Pole. With Floyd Bennett as his pilot, he took off on May 9 at 12.37 a.m. and they had two exciting experiences before getting to the Pole. The engines began to knock and Bennett climbed out on the wing in the bitter cold and remedied the trouble.

Later—an oil leak developed. They discovered, however, that the plane would fly on two engines and cut off the damaged motor.

Arriving at the Pole at 9.04 a.m. they circled round thirteen times, being able as a result of their observations to confirm Peary's bearings.

At the end of June, 1927, Byrd flew the Atlantic with three other airmen. They spent a whole night searching for Paris and eventually finding themselves off the coast again. Landed in the Seine estuary, forced down by lack of fuel. They got ashore in a rubber boat completely exhausted.

TIENTSIN-PUKOW RLY. DEFAULT

REPRESENTATIONS TO BE MADE

London, Dec. 11. In the House of Commons to-day, Sir John Simon, replying to Mr. Moreing with reference to the default on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway loans, said that one or two payments appear to have been made into a special reserve account for the eventual liquidation of the loans, but they are insufficient to make the position in any way satisfactory.

Sir John Simon is instructing the British Minister to renew representations in the matter.

BODY FOUND IN HARBOUR

FOUL PLAY THEORY DISCARDED

The body of a Chinese male, aged about 30, was found floating in the harbour at 10.30 a.m. today. A rope which was apparently tied round the waist led to a suspicion of foul play.

Mr. T. Murphy and Inspector Chester Woods immediately went to Yum-tai to inspect the body and to investigate, and came to the conclusion that it was an ordinary case of drowning.

It is now believed that while floating in the water, the body became entangled in a piece of rope. The theory of foul play is therefore nullified.

The body was in an advanced state of decomposition.

MOUNTAIN'S SEX-APPEAL

The Romance of He and Ski

Mt. Kosciuszko has always been a popular winter sports resort in New South Wales but the Government tourist department are hoping to make it even more popular by subtly, very subtly, stressing its sex appeal.

It has been stated that young people who join in the various sports there, particularly ski-ing, appear to exercise an increased attraction for the opposite sex and that if they have any inclination towards matrimony they will surely find a desirable partner: the magic of the mountain seep to that. At any rate, says Austral News, many couples have recently been married following their meeting at Kosciuszko.

Officials are now hoping that the flower-carpeted Kosciuszko of summer will exercise a similar romantic attraction.

ELLIS KADOORIE SCHOOL

GOOD YEAR'S WORK REPORTED

Presenting the prizes at the Ellis Kadoorie School this morning the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau heartily congratulated Mr. J. Ralston, Headmaster, on the splendid results of the year's work, adding that they reflected great credit on the staff and students.

Hon. Mr. Chau regretted the impending departure of Mr. Ralston to take over other duties and deeply sympathised with the School in the loss it would sustain. He wished Mr. Ralston every success in his new sphere of usefulness.

Mr. N. L. Smith, Director of Education, proposed thanks to Hon. Mr. Chau and referred to his associations with that gentleman's father, adding that his expectations as to whether Mr. T. N. Chau would follow in his father's footsteps had been fulfilled in every respect. Mr. Smith said the school, above all others, was a monument to Chinese endeavour.

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The Headmaster, Mr. J. Ralston, said.—The school year which commenced on 1st January, 1933, terminated on 31st October. This curtailment of the session necessitated a certain speeding up of the work, but the keenness of the pupils and the co-operation of the staff enabled the curriculum in all classes to be completely overtaken.

The maximum enrolment was 441, a decrease of 29. The average daily attendance was 418, an improvement on even last year's excellent percentage. The almost complete elimination of frivolous excuses for absence is a very gratifying feature of the school at the present time. Parents and guardians are at last realising that requests for leave on inadequate grounds will not be acceded to. In January I took over Headmastership from Mr. Kay. We were glad in September to welcome back once more Mrs. Church who came to replace Mrs. O'Connor. The latter has gone on well-earned leave to Europe after 6 years' continuous service in the Education Department. Also in the month of September Mrs. Stubbs returned to us on transfer from King's College. Her work here is of the greatest value in the higher classes. We were sorry to lose the services of Miss Newsholme last June. She is now Headmistress of the Peak School; she we hope will return to us early in the New Year.

EXAMINATION SUCCESSES.

As already stated, the educational work done during last session was eminently satisfactory and the results in the Annual Examination proved this. In Class 4, 48 boys presented themselves for the Annual Examination, and 34 were successful. It is interesting to note that of these 34, only 11 elected to be promoted to King's College, while 23 proceeded from here to Queen's to continue their studies.

As some of you are aware, this school building was erected gradually over a period of several years by the Ellis Kadoorie Chinese Schools Society of which the late Mr. Lau Chu-pak was secretary. It was finally completed in the year 1911 and handed over to Government in 1915. The care and maintenance of the structure and furniture are in the hands of the Public Works Department, which carried out a considerable number of necessary repairs during last summer vacation. There is always an annoyance of a summer plague of white ants and constant vigilance is required to bring to light and repair their ravages.

As was emphasised in last year's Headmaster's report, the health of both staff and pupils has again been excellent. It is essential that students be in a fit state physically to profit by the education we provide for them. To this end we are indebted for medical attention and treatment to our school clinic and also to the adjacent Government Civil Hospital.

HEALTH EXHIBITION.

A successful Health Exhibition arranged by the Medical Officer for Schools was recently held in the school during which there were public lectures and demonstrations by the school doctors and nurses. Our older boys attended these and showed great interest.

The usual out-door and indoor sports were taken part in during the period under review, and recreational and educational excursions by both sea and land were greatly enjoyed by staff and pupils. A feature of the work in the highest classes has been the periodic visits paid under the guidance of their teachers to the various parts of the Colony. The broader cultural aspect of modern education has received definite attention and to this end have contributed a weekly pictorial lesson current events and the supply of suitable English and Chinese periodicals to the school Reading Club. The prefects have done excellent work in maintaining discipline, both in school and without.

SCOUT TROOP ACTIVITIES

Unfortunately, certain irregularities were brought to light regarding the conduct of some members of our Ellis Kadoorie School Troop of Boy Scouts. In spite of diligent search and enquiry, no suitable officers could be found to take charge, and the activities of the troop have regrettably been discontinued. I hope this will prove only a temporary suspension of this useful influence in school life.

I desire to thank publicly the donors of the scholarships presented to-day. No Headmaster's speech is complete without formal reference to the good work of his teachers. I have never paid tribute to the labours of a more willing and able staff. I shall part with you all with great regret when I proceed from here on transfer next week. The school, however, is fortunate in that my place as Headmaster will be filled by Mr. Kay (Australasian). I feel certain you will all be glad to have him back. In conclusion I wish to thank the visitors for their attendance—especially the Hon. Mr. Chau whom we are all delighted to welcome among us to-day. Mr. Chau has been kind enough to consent to distribute these prizes and scholarships won by the recipients in the recent Annual Examinations. I now invite him to do so and I hope he will address us afterwards. (Applause).

MR. HO KWONG AND SON NOW ACCUSED

SENSATIONAL TURN IN ABDUCTION CASE

COUNSEL TO BE ENGAGED

There was a sensational development in the case in which Thomas Lee, young Australian-born Chinese, is charged with abduction to Shanghai of Miss Alma To, daughter of Dr. Herbert To, of Hongkong, when Ho Kwong, well-known local financier, and his son Ernest Ho, appeared before Mr. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy this morning, on summonses charging them with having caused Miss To to be taken out of possession of her father. The Court was well filled with the younger set.

It is understood that Mr. H. G. Sheldon is being briefed for the prosecution, and Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C. for defence of Thomas Lee.

Mr. R. A. Wadson, for the prosecution, and Mr. W. C. Hung, who is appearing for Lee, informed the Court that they were instructing counsel. Mr. M. K. Lo is conducting the defence of Ho Kwong and his son.

Hearing of the case was fixed for Monday, December 18 at 2.30 p.m. and will be continued on Tuesday and Wednesday afterwards. His Worship also provisionally fixed Friday afternoon.

Mr. Wadson, in reply to his Worship, said there was exactly the same evidence against all three defendants.

Mr. Lo said there was one point he wanted to clear up before his Worship fixed a date to proceed with the case. His Worship knew the local ordinance which was stated to be declaratory of the law as to aiders and abettors in misdemeanours. In order to enable him to take instructions to defend, he would ask for particulars.

WHAT CHARGE?

Usually in any indictment of aiding and abetting, some particulars were supplied and he (Mr. Lo) would not like to appear at the first hearing facing a charge without knowing what it was. If he was charged with the actual taking of the girl, he knew where he stood.

He would like the prosecution to tell him whether his clients were charged as aiders and abettors or with the principal offence.

His Worship:—As far as I can see, Mr. Lo is entitled to that.

Mr. Wadson:—They are charged as principals and we allege common conspiracy against them.

JOINT TAKING.

His Worship:—You are not alleging precisely the same facts?

Mr. Wadson:—They all took part in the taking.

Mr. Lo remarked that it would appear that he was really defending his clients charged jointly with the actual taking away of the girl from her father.

Mr. Wadson remarked it made no difference in misdemeanours. Principals or aiders and abettors were guilty of the same offence.

Mr. Hamilton:—Mr. Lo is entitled to have details. It is a principle of defence to have full facilities.

COUNSEL TO APPEAR.

Mr. Wadson:—I have no objection to giving the particulars. I understand my friend is getting counsel, and I shall be too.

Mr. Lo:—I am afraid I won't have that luxury.

His Worship then fixed dates for hearing as stated above.
